Acknowledgements

Language is the most eloquent vehicle of human expression but yet at times one finds it difficult to get appropriate words to express ones feelings fully. As I begin to acknowledge the people who helped me give shape to this dissertation, I fall short of words to express my gratitude and reverence for my supervisor, Dr. Liaqat Ali, Assistant Professor, School of Management Studies, Punjabi University, Patiala; for holding my hand through all the odds of data collection and compiling of this thesis, in spite of his other demanding obligations in the university and at home. This work would not have seen the final stage without his in-depth thinking, analytical approach and motivation to come out with the best. His expert guidance not only helped me improve upon my work but also excel in other fields of life. I shall remain indebted to him for all.

I feel highly indebted to Dr (Mrs) Varinder Kaur Thind, Principal, Khalsa College for Women, civil lines, Ludhiana – my Guru and mentor for instilling in me my lost confidence and helping me learn to dream of higher heights in life. Without her motivation and constant guidance and support, this project would not have got its present shape as she kept alive in me the zeal to pursue this work inspite of all the odds.

I would also like to acknowledge the guidance and learning provided by Dr Pushpinder Singh Gill, Head, School of Management Studies, Dr Navjot Kaur, Professor, School of Management Studies, Prof R.K. Sehgal and all my other teachers in the department who taught me during my MBA and made me competent to achieve these heights. It would be a remiss if I fail to gratify the contribution of Dr A.S. Chawla, former Head of the Department, who found me competent to pursue research and granted me the permission to work on it.

I would also like to place on record my gratitude to all the respondents who willingly shared their perception and the managers in various banks and insurance companies who unhesitatingly provided me all information and some important deep insights to the topic by their discussions.

Words fall short as I attempt to express my gratitude to the authorities of University Grants Commission, who found me capable enough to carry out a minor research project on the topic and funded my research to a greater extent.

It would be a remiss on my part if I fail to acknowledge the untiring support provided by my mother Mrs. Sunita Chatley, who smilingly bore my long spells of absence from home inspite of the tough times she faced during the tenure of my thesis.
work. I just fail to gratify the contributions of my late father Sh. Raj Kumar Chatley, for holding my hand throughout life and making me competent enough to make my mark in the society.

All thanks would be incomplete if I fail to thank that Almighty who gave me the courage to fight out all the difficult times that I came across during the duration of my Ph.D. and just held my hand to help me sail through and fulfil my dream.
