ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This study has been completed at the Department of Business Economics, Faculty of Commerce, M.S. University of Baroda, Baroda, under the guidance of Dr. S. Srikantiah, Reader in Business Economics, Faculty of Commerce, M.S. University of Baroda, Baroda. In completing the study I received help from many. My special debt is to Dr. S. Srikantiah whose able guidance has continuously directed all my efforts to the right channel. All throughout the study he remained the main source of inspiration and direction.

At the early stage of the study, under the ICSSR study grant scheme, I visited the Sardar Patel Institute of Economic and Social Research, Ahmedabad, during May-June, 1973. This stay has provided opportunity to discuss the study with Dr. Y.K. Alagh, Dr. K.K. Subrahmanian, Dr. R.J. Mody and Dr. Radhakrishna of the Institute and helped me decisively in laying sound base to the study. I express my indebtedness to them.

I am grateful to Mr. K.A. Dave, Chairman, Gujarat Electricity Board, Baroda, who showed a keen interest in the study and introduced me to his office. Among the officials consulted, Mr. J.S. Iyer, Superintending Engineer (Inspection) and Mr. H.B. Bhatt, Additional Financial Adviser and Chief Accounts Officer, were the main. Discussions with them have helped me a lot to speed up the study. I am thankful to them for their co-operation.

The essential impetus to this study is provided by Prof. H.P. Chokshi, Dean, Faculty of Commerce, and Head, Department of Business Economics, M.S. University of Baroda, Baroda. Particularly at the latter stage of the study he restricted my teaching work and other assignments in the Faculty to the level where the progress of the study remained uninterrupted. I am very much grateful to him for his encouraging attitude and the facilities provided.

Discussions with Prof. K.C. Mehta, Head, Department of Accounts and Auditing, Faculty of Commerce, M.S. University of Baroda, Baroda, have helped me in understanding certain accounting procedures and systems and in analysing the financial aspects of the concern. I am thankful to him.

I received great help from many of my colleagues in the Faculty and University. Dr. K.R. Shah, Reader in Business Economics and Mr. P.R. Pancholi, Lecturer in Business Economics, Faculty of Commerce, Baroda, have shared the study in going through the draft. For statistical computation and processing of data my thanks go to Mr. D.K.
