Sanskrit language now indisputably occupies the stage of sanctity among the languages used the world over. It has the innumerable branches of knowledge that are so varied, rich imaginative and delightful that these can only be tasted but not studied in detail in a single effort. Therefore how could it be possible for me to do full justice to so classic creation like Lalitā-sahasranāma (LS), magnum opus of an anonymous writer. However I have made a sincere and humble attempt to justify the place of the LS. in Tantric branch of Sanskrit literature. I feel embarrassed like Kalidasa who has said in the Raghuvamsa "तिलेनुद्धर्ण्ये ओलकुदैश्चुन्मिप अश्वतरम्"

The LS. occupies prominent and unique place in the field of the Tantric literature. It has a special aura in its form as it incorporates the major significant tenets which are embodied in the vast bulk of the Tantric literature. Moreover it spells its own class as steadfast as the North Star, among the copious Sahasranāmas. It is mainly due to its rare qualities such as lucidity, clarity, elucidation etc. To crest it all the one thousand names in the text contain within themselves the fundamentals of the Sākta Philosophy.

The LS. as it portrays almost all the fundamental principles of the Sakti-Cult is the gem in Tantrasāstra. Though it is written with a special reference to the slaying of Bhandāsura, the demon, it possesses various epithets of the Goddess Lalita which have secret doctrines underlying the Tantras. They elaborate various aspects of the Goddess such as Nirguna, Saguna, Parasakti, Kundalini and others.

The importance of the study lies in the fact that the IS. though commented upon by Bhaskararaya has escaped the analytical and critical pen of scholars. The study, as the title signifies, is made in the light of the Saubhagya-bhaskara, the versatile commentary on the IS, and needless to say that it is the study of the IS. and not of the Saubhagya-Bhaskara.

The study is presented in five Chapters and five appendices. Chapter-I deals with the origin and development of Sahasranama literature and the importance of the IS. Chapter-II focuses on the date, home and authorship of the IS. Chapter-III is the textual study of one thousand names of the Goddess Lalita, in which thousand names are interpreted and explained with dissolution of compounds after Bhaskararaya. In Chapter-IV the critical and analytical study of the thousand names is attempted. Chapter-V explains in the form of conclusion, the significance and place of the IS. in the Tantric and Sahasranama literature and points out the literary beauties of the IS.

The study ends with five appendices: Appendix-I is the text of the IS. in its original form in Sanskrit. Appendix-II lists of alphabetically the thousand names of the Goddess. Appendix-III shades light on the life of Bhaskararaya, the commentator on the IS. Appendix-IV discusses date of Bh. and presents works of Bh., Appendix-V enlists the works and authors... quoted by Bh. and deals with Bh.'s erudition in brief. The thesis ends with a bibliography.

In the present work the references to the numerous books which are either quoted by Bhaskararaya or which are referred to by me during the course of my study are enlisted at the end of each chapter.

Some of the quotations given by Bh. could not be identified. I have tried to identify majority of the quotations from the work on Tantras. The quotations from the Puranas could not be identified to the fullest satisfaction due to extreme shortage of time on my part. This labourious and time consuming task is kept for the future. I have remained satisfied by mentioning all the unidentified quotations by giving reference to the page number of the ISNB, NSP ed. Bombay 1919 which I have followed through my study.

Again, the complete hand-written script of the LS. in its original form in Sanskrit is given in the Appendix-I, so that it could be referred to for ready reference.

The book named 'Lalitāsahasranāma' (Yoga Annotation) by T.V. Ramanaiyah is an attempt to interpret the LS. from the Yoga point of view. But in most of the cases his interpretations are far-fetched and unconvincing. Hence they are not mentioned in the present work.

Now, looking to the time consumed, I feel that the present work could not have been completed, had it not been for the help of many to whom I am indebted. To name a few:
Bhāskarārāya, the versatile genius of the bygone days occupies the prime gratification for his work magnum opus, the Saubhāgya-Bhāskara, which I have extensively used.

The paternal and personal care and scholastic guidance of my revered guide Mr. Dr. Arunodaya N. Jani, formerly Head, Department of Sanskrit and Director, Oriental Institute, Baroda, and at present Senior Scholar in Sanskrit Mahavidyalaya, M.S. University of Baroda, Baroda, is enshrined in my heart. From Dr. Jani, a renowned scholar in Tantrasāstra, I have had the privilege of an invaluable masterly guidance. I am indebted to him more than I can express in words.

I am also very much grateful to Mr. Dr. S. G. Kantawala, Professor and Head, Department of Sanskrit, and I/c Director of the Oriental Institute, M.S. University, Baroda, for his interest in my work and for useful suggestions. Though engaged in many activities Prof. Kantawala welcomed me cordially all the times whenever I approached him.

I am also thankful to Dr. J. R. Pathak, Principal, Sanskrit Mahavidyalaya, for the interest he has taken in the work and the encouragement.

I am also heartily grateful to my father who, inspite of his old age and indisposition, has always encouraged me, guided me and blessed me. With his benign blessings only I could complete this difficult work.

My sister Mrs. Purnima L. Dave has rendered her services in several ways. To her I am thankful.
Shri B.S. Kamble, Lecturer in English also spared his time for me. My friends Shri D.P. Rathod, Shri K.G. Dave and Shri R.H. Brahmbhatt proved of help in doing the tedious job of comparing the script. To them also I owe debt.

I express my hearty thanks to the U.G.C. Authorities for granting me the monetary assistance during the various stages of the work.

I am also thankful to the Authorities of the Oriental Institute, Smt. Hansa Mehta Library, Baroda and the Royal Asiatic Society Library, Bombay, for the facilities provided to consult the books.

Finally, without the pains and labour of Mr. N.N. Shah who has so neatly and carefully typed the thesis with diacritical marks and Mr. M.J. Kshatriya who has prepared the hand-written script of Sanskrit text so neatly, my work would not have seen the light of the day. To them also I am very thankful.

Baroda, - Labhasankar M. Joshi
Dated 28th June, 1983.