ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is a privilege to place on record my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. M.B. Buch, Professor and Head, Centre of Advance Study in Education, M.S. University of Baroda, who was not only responsible for my joining the Centre but took keen interest in the progress of the research.

I am highly indebted to Dr. B.K. Passi, Professor and Head, Department of Education, Indore University, for guiding this research.

I owe much to the Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi for granting a two-year teacher-fellowship, without which this work could not have seen the light of the day.

My thanks are due to the Life Insurance Corporation of India and the State Bank of Hyderabad for having cooperated with this research.

It is impossible to name all the Teachers and Fellow-researchers who helped me in a variety of ways at the Centre. But I should make a special mention of the consistent and unfailing help extended by Mr. Prasad Rao, a Fellow-researcher.

My young friends, Mr. Shankaraiah and Mr. Kumaraswami, who typed the thesis, have learnt the art of enjoying 'doing hard and neat work'. I am thankful to them.

This research could be completed within a period of two years because of the sacrifices made by my family members including my mother who passed away towards the end of the research, my wife Ganga and our child Mamata, whom the care and attention that were due were largely denied.
