ACKNOWLEDGMENT

At the outset, I would like to thank “Huzur Radhasoami Dayal” for being so kind to me all throughout my life. If not for his constant blessings and grace I wouldn’t have been able to accomplish any task whatsoever. This task of pursuing a Ph D, and reaching this stage of the submission of my study, especially in view of the other demands on my life and time and my requiring to do full justice to them, has been possible only through divine grace and blessings.

The first person in my life I am very thankful to, is my father Shri Soami Prashad Bhavnani, whose earnest desire was to see me achieve this milestone and it has been his constant pushing and aggressive follow up with me that I have been able to reach this stage. Whenever my commitment and attention towards this task used to wane he always ensured that it is restored to what it should have been. So have been my wife Neeta and my daughter, Nikita who have burnt innumerable number of candles along with me while working on this dissertation besides of course encouraging me continuously to move ahead with the task at hand and, to be honest, not without complaints but that was merely to push me further to my limits. My late mother Mrs. Sundri Bhavnani, and my brother, Prem Kumar Bhavnani, have always encouraged me and provided me with all assistance with the intention of seeing me succeed in this task. While there have been countless number people who have sincerely helped me all along and it is difficult for me to jot down all those names but I am highly indebted to all of them. Nevertheless, I need to highlight the following people for their excellent support, advice and encouragement and assistance which was always forthcoming without any complaints whatsoever even at the expense of their individual schedules.

First and foremost I would express my profound gratitude to Dr Mohd.Israrul Haque Reader, Department of Business Administration, Faculty of Management Research & Studies, AMU, Aligarh, who is my internal guide for the thesis and took immense interest and pains, much beyond what it was expected to be, to see that I succeed. His continuous questioning and demands for the submission of my work was what in fact made me really feel that this task would be indeed possible. I am immensely grateful to him for proving me all assistance and support in terms of his advice, counsel and guidance regarding the scholarly work to be undertaken at all possible times of the day as well as night.

Dr Satya Prakash Kaushik, Head, Department of Business Economics, Dayalbagh Educational Institute, Dayalbagh, Agra, who is my external advisor for the study deserves more credit than me for completing this study. Due to his vast experience in the academic field he was able to understand the enormity of the task and always ensured that I do not get bogged down by them. He also provided all assistance to me by taking out time from his ever busy schedule.

Mr. Ajay Saraf, who gave me immense support in using the SPSS package and guiding me to use statistics in a pragmatic manner, deserves immense credit for making this study a reality and being presented in its present form and I am grateful to him for extending all his help to me even at odd hours of the day.

I would be failing in my duty if I do not mention my erstwhile colleagues, Mr. P.N.C. Kotian, Mr. Nischey Chopra, Mr. Ashok Yadav, and Mr. Sameer Parker who were always more than willing to share the passion with me of completing this job at hand and without any complaints whatsoever, spent long hours in assisting me with all the presentation of the contents of this study.

Mr Zeeshan Haider and Mr Umair Farooqui from the department of Business Administration have also greatly assisted me in completing and trying all the loose ends of this study which is the most crucial element of the goal to be achieved and can make the difference between success and failure.

Few people from the shipping Industry, whose names I cannot but mention here for their invaluable services are Capt Hector Engineer, GM, MMSI, Capt R.S.Menon, Capt A.Kelkar, Capt Mahesh Yadav, Mr Kaushik Seal who greatly assisted me with the data collection and providing me valuable insights into the various diversities which they have experienced regarding the HRD practice seeing followed within the various shipping companies.

Finally, in fact, this should have been mentioned at the beginning, I have to express my gratitude to AIMA and its entire faculty and other members, who have created an opening for all people like me who have strong urge to pursue higher studies with a determination to acquire doctorate degree in business administration field, by introducing a DBA course jointly with AMU, and to all my colleagues at my workplace who tolerated me for large parts of the day without giving them enough attention and a patient hearing to their concerns.

I am constrained to put a stop here, even though I would like to continue to take names of all those responsible in bringing this dissertation to a presentable shape.

I would pray humbly at the lotus feet of "Huzur Radhasoami Dayal" to allow me an opportunity to repay all the assistance and support rendered to me by all concerned directly or indirectly and to pardon me should I have un-intentionally missed someone out.

Sanjay Kumar Bhavnani
