ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is indeed a great pleasure for me for having completed this research assignment entitled, Population Structure and Settlement Patterns in Mizoram: A Geographical Analysis, since any kind of research work is never an easy task.

My first and foremost obligation is due to my revered teacher and supervisor, Professor R.K. Rai, former Head, Department of Geography and former Dean, School of Environmental Sciences, NEHU, Shillong. He has been a source of constant inspiration and a critical scholar, who shaped my rough ideas into a much more mature form.

I am very grateful to Professor A.C. Mahapatra, Head of Department of Geography, NEHU, for making numerous facilities available to me, and for imparting constructive suggestions at various stages of my research tenure.

Dr. C. Nunthara, Reader, Department of Sociology, NEHU, has always been helpful and supportive whenever contacted on different issues. I really thank him for his contributions.

I am also indebted to Dr. Tlanglawma, Reader, Department of Economics, NEHU, for his parental support and encouragement. His invaluable help in many different ways is gratefully acknowledged.

I am thankful to Professor R. Gopalakrishnan, Dean, School of Environmental Sciences, Dr. N.P. Goel, Dr. S. Sharma and Dr. S. Singh of the Department of Geography, for their invaluable help in different ways, and their exhortations at times.

I could not express my gratitude by words for every inspiration, moral, physical and financial support rendered by my family members, especially to my uncle V.L. Dawta and to my brothers Lalrintlinga and Zochungnunga. I hope that all their wishes for my career will be materialised through this work.

I acknowledge the untiring help rendered by Mr. T.T. Zothansanga, Mr. K. Zomuana, Mr. K. Laldailova, Mr. B. Lalsangkima, Mr. K. Vanlalamawia, Mr. B. Vanlalthlana, Mr. R. Lalmachhuana, Mr. Vanlalringa Bawitlung and my fellow Mizo scholars and well-wishers. Their contribution in various ways have greatly helped me to complete the thesis.

I thank Mr. Lalthmingthanga, Statistical Assistant and Miss K. Laldawngliani, Statistical Computer, Directorate of Census Operation, Mizoram, Aizawl, for their generous response whenever contacted for data and other informations.

Above all, I do thank the Almighty God for everything that has come to my life. Neither words can express nor deeds can return all the blessings I have been nourished with.

I hope this thesis would suffice the purpose.
