It is with a profound sense of gratitude that I place on record my sincere thanks to all the individuals and institutions that have encouraged and supported me during the course of my research work.

This thesis has been completed under the guidance of Dr. Mary Joseph, a retired professor and former Director of the School of Management Studies (SMS), Cochin University of Science and Technology (CUSAT). Her constant faith in my ability to explore a different but genuine research endeavor that was off the beaten track, with an innovative research design that demanded my continuous and individual attention, has been a lesson to me. She has tirelessly kept on motivating and encouraging me to put in my best effort. I express my heartfelt gratitude for the valuable guidance, advice and encouragement that I received from her throughout the course of my work.

I express my sincere thanks to Professor Dr. C.A. Francis, Director of SMS and member of my Doctoral Committee, for his unstinted support and encouragement. His valuable contributions in the area of management, research and education as well as his visionary leadership at the helm of the School has enthralled many a person, including me. I am especially grateful to Prof. Dr. K.B. Pavithran, former Director of SMS, whose insightful suggestions and crucial interventions was instrumental in enabling me to carry out the study in the required time. Prof. Dr. Molly P. Koshy has always shown the greatest interest in the progress of my work, and her inspiring words and genuine interest has been motivating at all times. Dr. K.A. Zakkariya and Dr. Manoj Edward and Dr. P.R. Wilson have offered useful suggestions during crucial times that have done the study an immense amount of good. Discussions with Dr. M. Bhasi and Dr. Rajitha Kumar in the initial stages of the research have been very helpful and I am grateful to them for the same. Dr. Sam Thomas’ insightful questions have been helpful during crucial junctures of the research journey and I am greatly indebted to my entire faculty for their contribution in making this study complete.

I extend my gratitude to Dr. S. R. Mampilly, Dr. James Manalel, Dr. D. Mavoothu, Dr. N. Krishnan Namboothiri, Dr. Jagathy Raj V. P., and all other esteemed members of SMS, CUSAT. My sincere thanks go out to all the office and library staff of SMS, especially Mrs. Bindu. P.R, Dr. Shibu Ray, Mr. Ashraf. A.K, and Mr. Abhilash. R as well as Mr. Balachandran. K of the library of Applied Economics who have willingly and unreservedly extended all the support I needed to complete the work, both in the form of official procedures to be undertaken during and before the submission as well as in the suggestion of literature and reading material for the development of the thesis.

In a journey to this step I recollect with warmth the contributions of the institutes I was a part of, and the individuals who have been instrumental in aiding me through this research journey. Dr. Anandakuttan. B. Unnithan, former teacher, former director of Sree Narayana Guru Institute of Science and Technology and presently PGP Programme chair, IIM Kozhikode has been a mentor and facilitator. Crucial decisions about the study have been enlightened by his insightful suggestions. Thank you for the same.

Dr. Xaviour V. M, Coordinator of the MBA Programme at the Dr. John Mathai Center of Calicut University, Shri Renjan Das, the chairman of the SNGIST group of institutions, Mr. Suresh Narayanan, former director of SNGIST, Dr. P. R. Poduval, former Dean of SNGIST and Professor Saji Gopinath of IIM, Kozhikode who coordinated a research oriented faculty development program in March 2006 were individuals who played unique, crucial and decisive roles in the framing of the research endeavor. I am eternally grateful for your directed and well meanings suggestions. Special thanks to Dr. P. K Baby, Director and former colleague, Dept. of Students’ Welfare, CUSAT, Professor Dr. Kuppachi Sreenivas and Mr. Geo Baby of the MBA department, SNGIST for their well meaning advice and directives.
Mr. C. Jayachandran, President of the Kannur Textile Exporters Association (KTEO) and four key individuals of the case study firms; these individuals have made this study what it is through their individual contributions. Their patient listening, their narrative accounts, the odd memories, the reminiscences, recollections and opinions, and most of all the detailing of their answers have cost them dearly in terms of time spent in hours of interviews, discussions, deliberations and envisioning the future of their industry. The history of their industry, linked in indeterminate ways to their own personal lives and embedded in a beloved region, has given shape and molded this study, given it a form and breathed life into it, and imagination into its form. I am eternally grateful for your valuable time – the endless hours of it, which I knew was worth so much more than being spent on a seemingly endless conversation, and which, by your grace and magnanimity, was being spent on a first time case study researcher from SMS, CUSAT.

Mr. P. Balan, Independent Textile consultant, Mr. K. Chandran of the IHTT, Mr. V.C. Panicker of Weaver’s Service Center, Mr. M. Balachandran of the All India Radio (AIR), Mr. Sreedharan N, Chief Executive of IKON (Irinavu Consortium), Mr. Mohan Kelath, Ms. Jeeja and the Presidents and/or secretaries of Pappinassery Weavers Society (W.S), Chirakkal W.S, Irinavu W.S, Koothuparambu W.S, and Pinarayi W.S. have been invaluable in providing reflexive accounts of the industry and their perspectives have been invaluable to the study.

I am grateful to my colleagues at the SMS, in particular, Ms. Sindhu P. S, Mr. Mohammed Hilal, Ms. Renjini Jayakumar, Mr. Hamza V.K and Mr. Shaji, M.N., fellow travelers on the research journey with whom discussions about future directions have been always fruitful, never one sided.

The indebtedness I have towards my immediate family, my husband, Mr. Santhosh Baby and my sons Reuben and David, cannot be expressed in words. The seemingly endless hours of writing and working became possible at the expense of time spent for their well being, and for this I shall be eternally grateful.
I remember my late father Mr. O.T Anthony and my mother Mrs. Mary Anthony and thank them for their prayers and blessings. Their wish to see me achieve greater heights in my education and career has motivated me throughout my life. I am especially thankful to my parents in-law, Dr. P.T. Baby and Mrs. Thankamma Baby for their constant encouragement and unmitigated support. I am especially grateful to my siblings and their families, whose network of support and encouragement has been a constant source of inspiration.

Above all I thank God almighty for being with me to bring this study to its completion and for taking care of me during this time and always.

Anna Anna Anthony
