Acknowledgement

I would like to take the opportunity in conveying my appreciation, gratitude and thanks to all those who have made important contributions towards developing the present research work to its present form. It may not be possible to mention the names of all of my teachers, friends, and other persons within this short span, but I would like to acknowledge their help and suggestions and express my gratitude to all of them.

I sincerely acknowledge the painstaking effort of Dr. Rajarshi Majumder, under whose sincere, meticulous and able guidance the present thesis has been completed. I am grateful to him for his friendly suggestions, patient hearing, constant encouragement and pouring confidence towards formulating and finalizing the research topic from its inception to its end. I will remain thankful to him forever.

Prof. Nageshwar Prasad, Professor and Head of the Department of Geography, University of Burdwan, is the personality who made me interested to study physical geography, its applications to human development, and resultant effects from the beginning of my career as a geographer. I owe my sincere thanks and gratitude and to him and my head bows in respect whenever I think of him.

Prof. Lata Chatterjee, currently at Boston University, USA, took the pain of accompanying me during my field-work and discussing how human activities and developmental work modifies physical environment which in turn may destroy the process of human development itself. I express my sincere appreciation for her.

Prof. Aditya Chatterjee, Professor and Head, Dept of Statistics, University of Burdwan, inspired me to use many of the statistical techniques applied in the present work. I will certainly remain thankful to him.

Prof. Sankar Sengupta and Prof. Devmalya Dutta, Dept of Business Administration, Prof. Uttam Dutta, Dept of Commerce, Dr. Mrinal Pal, Dept of Physics, at the University of Burdwan; Prof. Kausik Gupta, Professor of Economics at Dept of Economics, Rabindra Bharati University, Kolkata are few personalities who have always advanced valuable comments and suggestions in various stages of the thesis. I sincerely owe a lot to them all.

My colleagues at the Dept of Geography, University of Burdwan - Prof. Kamala Bhattacharya, Ms. Susmita Bhattacharya Barua, Dr. Giasuddin Siddique, Dr. Sanat Guchhait, Dr. Lakshmi Sivaramakrisnan, Dr. Gopa Samanta, and Mr. Deb Prakash Pahari - constantly gave support in various ways and form in completing my thesis. I shall remain thankful to them. I feel it is my duty to acknowledge the help and support extended to me from all other staff members of the Dept of Geography also.
All the teachers and other staffs at the Dept of Economics of the University of Burdwan were extremely helpful to me. Each time I have been to the Department, they have shown caring attitude towards me, which made me more comfortable and more responsible in completing my work. I express my respect and convey my thanks to them all.

Thanks are also due to my teachers at CSRD, JNU, from where I did my M.Phil., specially to Professor K. S. Sivasami, Professor S. K. Thorat and Professor Aslam Mehmood.

The staffs at the Seminar Libraries of the Dept of Geography & Economics and those at the Central Library of the University of Burdwan, Indian Statistical Institute, Kolkata, The British Council Library, Kolkata and the Cyber Cafes which I frequently visited are people without whose encouragement and support the present research was impossible to have been completed. It’s my pleasure to thanks them all.

It is also my duty to acknowledge the role played by my wife Maitrayee, who had to tolerate anxious periods of my work centered existence, who has been my mentor and still remains the sole of inspiration of the present work. I am indebted to her.

Finally, lots of love and affection for my daughter DYUTI, of four years, who has been mature enough not to disturb me on hearing that her father is doing PhD. Let her grow up in a sustainable world.
