It would have been impossible for me to put this work together without the help of many friends, volunteers, experts, family and many others.

When I just began my field work exploring parks, I was lucky to find Arun, Sneha and Adarsh who helped me immensely finding parks across Bangalore. This task would have been challenging for me with just the Bangalore guide. Knowing my sense of direction, I wonder if I would have ever finished finding and selecting parks for my study. They were so energetic that sometimes it was their enthusiasm that kept me going with field work initially. Although Sneha and Arun were around only for a short period, their involvement in field work was extremely helpful especially when it came to collecting pitfalls. Adarsh stayed till the end. With a hectic job in hand, it’s amazing to see how he sincerely helped me out with field work in the early morning hours and then rushed to work. In fact, he continues to enquire about how my work is progressing, although he seems to have given up on me now!

The study required me to interview architects, members belonging to NGOs, BBMP officers, directors of a few organizations to gather knowledge on Bangalore, policies, growth trends, management and many more. They were all extremely open and shared all the knowledge with me and sometimes even provided me with material without any hesitance. In spite of their busy schedule, they readily made time to share all the information they had. I would like to thank Mr. Narayanswamy, especially for scheduling so many meetings, discussing over the phone and readily giving me various documents; also Sudhira, for sharing several BBMP documents.

I would like to thank Dr. Ravindran, who eagerly in the very beginning of my study looked at the overall idea and gave his feedback and suggestions. In spite of his busy schedule, he made time for a good discussion in which he provided tremendous information on Bangalore.

A large portion of my study comprised social surveys with park users, people living around the park, gardeners, vendors, gym users and the list is endless. I was amazed by everybody’s patience, cooperation and willingness to run through a questionnaire with 112 questions, sometimes, early in the morning and odd hours after lunch. I never got shooed off or doors slammed at. In fact, several of them invited me inside their homes and offered me a cup of juice or tea. Knowing how I have refused so many sales people who have come for a short survey to my place, I expected the same in return. Even old people were so energetic and happy to chit chat with me. It is unbelievable thinking of the treatment I got in spite of torturing them for a minimum of an hour. Without these social surveys, a big chunk of my study would have been incomplete. The most embarassing task was interviewing couples. Mythri and Girish helped me with this and I managed to finish this well within time. Thanks to them!

I would like to thank MB Krishna, Karthikeyan, Shashikumar, Subramanian and Dr.
Chandrashekar for promptly sharing checklists of birds and butterflies with me; MB Krishna also for discussions over coffee and sharing reading material to gather historical knowledge on Bangalore. He was also co-operative during a long interview. Anything over a cup of coffee seemed achievable though!

There have been several people who went through my initial never-ending drafts of chapters; Ganesh, Allwin and Rajkamal so patiently went through my chapters, giving me some great feedback on how to improve the chapters; Henrik and Keith for their critical comments and suggestions.

I thank SRC for the well-timed network course. If not for this course, I wouldn’t have been able to apply network analysis in my study. Henrik especially has gone all out to help me understand and apply it in my study. Also, Jordon Ferenc from MS has also been kind enough to help me sort out problems that I faced while using UCINET (the software for network analysis, SNA). Without their support, applying SNA in my study would have been impossible.

Seema and Harini are my committee members. They have been so nice to me in spite of not having regular meetings and keeping them updated. I would like to thank them for their suggestions and comments on various chapters. They have always been supportive and encouraging. Also would like to thank Harini for sharing images with me. Without them, the core of my thesis, the biodiversity chapter would have been incomplete.

Aravind as usual has been so patient with all my crazy stats doubts. He would teach me in spite of repeatedly making the same mistake several times. Also, he helped me with a lot of papers which ATREE didn’t have access to in a jiffy. Also, I thank him for making time from his busy schedule to sit through discussions with Soubadra and me. Any problem regarding thesis from the time of registration till the end…to catch Aravind and gather information was the easiest, most prompt and fastest way of getting work done. Thanks to him for also helping me format some unruly tables and figures which refused to behave themselves.

I would like to thank Allwin with his inputs on CVM and for helping me out with STATA and Chetan for teaching me how to use R.

I thank Sarpras and the insect team guided by Dr. Nasser from Calicut University who did the most difficult part, the initial insect identification for me; followed by Seena who helped me with the morpho species identification, without which identification would have been a challenge. I would like to thank Priyan for allowing me to use his lab facilities.

I am thankful to SRC, for the funds to carry out my study. I would also like to thank Thomas Elmqvist for giving his comments and suggestions. He was always eager to know the status of my study. I also thank him for making time for discussions whenever he visited ATREE.
Gladwin has always been encouraging from the time I registered for the PhD programme. His constant concern on how the study was going on while he would spot me in the corridors and his encouragement motivated me several times to pursue my work with more vigour. I thank Gladwin for having the confidence in me.

Kiran and Aneesh helped me in every step of my GIS work. Aneesh, in spite of being loaded with work, would take time off and sort out all my GIS problems. He was extremely calm and patient even when I committed the silliest of errors. Srirupa towards the finishing stages also helped me and I’d like to thank her also.

Madhavi helped me a lot, be it in submitting reports on time or providing me information on submission of my thesis. There were several instances when she had to get signatures for me from my committee members and submit documents to MU. She never refused in spite of these instances occurring again and again.

Harini, Nitin, Aravind, Ganesh and Ganesan would forward interesting urban-related papers to me, the minute they saw them. Thank you so much for keeping me on your mind!

There was constant help from Ramesh, Lakshmikanth, Umesh, Sunil and Anjali for various things in the office. They were always ready to help me out with a smile. I can never stop thanking them for everything they have done for me.

Soubadra has been an incredible guide and more of a friend. She has moulded me over these 8 years I have been in ATREE. She has always encouraged me to widen my focus and has guided me in every little thing I did. She made sure that I attended conferences, presented papers, and wrote papers and proposals in order to gain experience. She would always prioritize my work and would spontaneously get back to me. She treated me more as her daughter than a student. She gave me so much freedom and space, yet groomed me regularly. I am blessed to have her guide me in the most important phase of my life.

My family has been the greatest support and strength and it is because of them I’ve come so far in my career. My mom and brother have been beside me in every moment of my life. I am blessed with Vivek, amma and appa, who continued to support me throughout my PhD. They have all tolerated the times when I ignored domestic duties at home and concentrated only on my PhD. The freedom, understanding and encouragement they all gave me is beyond explanation. Vivek has always been supportive of whatever I did. He celebrated when I was happy and got me out of days when I was very disappointed. He’s made me a stronger person. He means the world to me. I’m more than blessed to have a family like this. This thesis is dedicated to my family, which includes Soubadra and Ganesh. I love them loads!

God has been so kind and generous. He’s never stopped blessing me and that’s more than evident through my PhD. Whenever I thought things were impossible, he’s made it all so simple and smooth for me. He’s given me the best people, I could ever have, who make my life so worthwhile. Thank you God for everything!
