ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Right from my school days, the gothic had been a topic of great inquisitiveness for me. Later on, when I came across the works of the Bronte/sisters, their quaint efforts at writing from that back-of-the-beyond place called Haworth, their trendsetting modernity of thought and their interesting use of the gothic drew me. My decision to undertake research on the Elements of the Gothic in the Brontes was, thus, just a natural fallout. But nothing would perhaps have materialized, had it not been for the erudite and firm-handed guidance that I got from my Supervisor, Dr. Anima Biswas, Professor, the Department of English of the University of Burdwan. She has been there for me whenever I floundered, ready to steady me and help me out with her vast repertoire of knowledge. She has given me unstinted support and has steered me through those hours of laborious study that any research scholar has to go through. Yet another person whom I am whole-heartedly grateful to is Dr. Ajoy Ranjan Biswas, retired Reader in English, Vivekanda College, Burdwan. His has been a constantly reassuring presence during my stint as a Research Scholar. His encouragement and help has gone a long way in egging me on to complete my research.

I owe my gratitude to Dr. Kalyani Ghosh, too, whose book, The Novels of Charlotte Bronte: a Reassessment has been immensely enlightening in my work. I am also indebted to the National Library and the British Council Library, Kolkata and the Central Library of the University of Burdwan. I am thankful for the useful services of the Internet too, for, it is because of various websites that I have been able to procure the photographs and pictures annexed to my thesis. Though not indispensable for the dissertation, the pictures have added colour to the thesis and will hopefully allow the readers to have a glimpse into the Bronte world.

I must speak of my parents, Prof B.B. Hazra and Mrs. Archana Hazra here, too, as they are the ones whose silent yet strong support has steadied me in many a phase of frustration and bewilderment. They have stood by me like rocks, lending me their encouragement, help and love whenever I faltered. It was their silent longing to see my research work completed that provided a great impetus to my work. I could not have done without their blessings and love. I stand grateful to my husband, Subhasis Das, for bailing me out of many a problem as far as handling computers and procuring informative material is concerned. He has borne all inconveniences smilingly for my sake. Last but not the least, I must thank my little four-year-old daughter, Devadrita for being a constant source of cheeriness in my life, thereby inspiring me to get along with my work with renewed vigour and zest.

Aparajita Hazra.
