ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Job of such a nature and magnitude is not possible to accomplish without help, support and encouragement from many angles. Right from the genesis of very idea to work on the subject to its completion, I have incurred both intellectual and moral debts to few people. It is indeed a pleasant privilege to express my deepest gratitude to all who helped me directly or indirectly in accomplishing this task.

When the work was decided upon, I was naturally unsure and hesitant because of the sheer enormity and complexity of the task. The defining moment was when I first approached Dr. Sujit Sikidar, Professor, Department of Commerce, Gauhati University, Guwahati, Assam with a request to be my pathfinder for this doctoral research work. His clear vision, conceptual clarity and gentle persona endowed me with boundless hope and confidence. On completion of the present study, I express my profound gratitude and indebtedness to my revered guide Professor Sujit Sikidar, for his incessant supervision and untiring support to upgrade quality of the study and to pursue my academic endeavours without whose active involvement the work would not have become a reality.

I feel infinitely to be owed to Dr. Padmalochan Hazarika, Professor and Head, Department of Commerce, Dr. Nagen Chandra Das, Dr. Nayan Barua, Dr. Hem Chandra Gautam, Dr. Amrit Pal Singh, Mr. Santosh Kumar Mahapatra, Dr. Aparajita Borkakoty, Dr. Bhaskarjyoti Borah, Dr. Debabrata Das, Ms. Angana Borah, Dr. Prasanta Sarma of Department of Commerce, for their support and cooperation. Their emphasis on quality of work helped me to remain cautious and that paid me dividend in the long run. With all humility, I thank the distinguished academicians for their words of wisdom they have enriched me with.
I offer my sincere gratitude to Dr. Ghanashyam Nath, Principal, Gauhati Commerce College, Guwahati for his continuous inspiration and untiring support. He very kindly imbued a sense of unflinching purpose in me that gets reflected in my work. So enormous has been his moral boosting that it is practically difficult to express gratefulness for the same. Yet, I do express my humble gratefulness to him.

I express my special thanks to Dr. Ajeya Jha, Head, Department of Management Studies, Sikkim Manipal Institute of Technology, Sikkim for reinforcement of positive attitude, constant blessings and continuous support that has been essential for successful completion of this research work and particularly his willingness to allow me to be out of my present engagement as and when there arises academic needs. I further express my thanks to Dr. Gautam Dutta, Professor, Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, Kolkata for his generous inspiration to complete the present study.

The work would not have been accomplished without the helping hand by the Government officials of various relevant departments. I owe a lot to those Government officials who have encouraged me profoundly by providing relevant information. I particularly take this opportunity to offer my gratitude to Mr. Sribas Dhar, for his generous help in procuring needed data relating to various aspects of trade performance and his all round inspiration during the study. I also extend my deepest gratitude to Mr. R.C. Agarwal, President, North East Federation of International Trade for his valuable support.

It is indeed a pleasure to express a genuine appreciation to all the traders of North Eastern Region of India who thoughtfully participated in surveys and responded to my queries on export and import related information and offer significant data and suggestions that have made this research work meaningful.
The academic assistance and encouragement received from time to time from Mr. L. D. Singh, Lecturer, School of Management Studies, Nagaland University is gratefully acknowledged. I am also grateful to Debabrata Sarkar, Junior Engineer, PWD, Tripura for his generous help for the study. I also offer my sincere thanks to my colleagues of Sikkim Manipal Institute of Technology Mr. Biju Phukan Bhagawati, Mr. Santanu Sovapandit, Mrs. Manashi Sovapandit, Mr. Biswajit Dey who have extended their kind help in completion of the research work.

I will be doing a great injustice to myself if I fail to acknowledge Dr. Utpala Sikidar, wife of Professor Sujit Sikidar, for her kind blessings and being the true and benevolent Annapurna during numerous visits to their residence that I undertook to complete my study.

I am thankful to Mr. Bedanta Bora, my husband for his encouragement and interest in my academic works. The academic support provided by him during my research too demands grateful acknowledgement.

I am beholden and grateful to Mr. Laksheswar Dev Adhikary, my revered father, Mrs. Kavita Adhikary, my revered mother, Mr. Abanindra Chandra Bora, my revered father-in-law and Mrs. Phul Bora, my revered mother-in-law for their constant blessings and moral support that has been critical for the successful completion of this project. I am grateful to Dr. Ranjeeta, Ms. Seema, Ms. Angana and other family members who scarified their pleasant movement during my preoccupation with academic pursuit.

Endeavor of this nature draws the life from works of various known scholars. I am fortunate to have learnt immensely from the vision and insight of many scholars. I offer my sincere most gratitude and indebtedness to all of them which is duly acknowledged in the bibliography.
Last, but not the least, I thank all those who have directly or indirectly stood by me in every moment of need and those names might have escaped inadvertently from my memory. I gratefully acknowledge their support which indeed has been immeasurable.
