ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I express my sincere gratitude to Dr. Anil Kumar Boro, Reader, Department of Folklore, Gauhati University, with whom I had the privilege to go on with the research project. But for his able guidance and sincere supervision it has become possible for me to delve into the core of the subject. I take here the opportunity to offer my gratefulness to the learned scholar, who has spent his busy hours for my work. I am deeply indebted to him for his valuable suggestions in developing the subject with maximum coverage of various aspects of the tribe and also along a scientific line of investigation.

Late Ganesh Ch. Senapati, Ex-President of Tiwa Mathonlai Tokhra and Ex-Principal of Barapujia H.S. School, advised me to take up the textile tradition of the Tiwa tribe of Assam as a major research project when I met him in connection with a minor research project of the U.G.C. He died in harness all of a sudden. His death was a great loss to the Tiwa community. He was one among those whose contribution in the revival of Tiwa language and culture was considerably remarkable. His death is a great loss to me in delving deep into the subject of my research. Let the Almighty God give peace to the departed soul.

I am grateful to the authority of Raha College, and ex-Principal, Dharanidhar Goswami, for kindly permitting me to conduct the research project side by side with my normal duties as regular employees of the College. I express my sincere thanks to Dipti Devi, present Principal-in-Charge of Raha College, for her inspiration and support.
I acknowledge with debt the ungrudging help rendered by Maheswar Patar, President of Tiwa Mathonlai Tokhra. Patar is a learned scholar and a folklorist of considerable eminence. He accompanied me several times for days together in the hills of Karbi Anglong where I recovered maximum material on my subject with the help of the learned scholar. He always played the role of the interpreter between me and my informants. It is due to his able guidance that I am able to unearth the virgin field of Karbi Anglong.

I express my sincere gratitude to Rimal Amchi, scholar and social activist, for his help and support. Robert Lumphuid has given me the Tiwa Matpadi, a dictionary of Tiwa language, as gift besides the newly published collection of the celebrated journal, Ring-chang. I express my debt to him.

I express my sincerest gratitude to the celebrated scholar, Balairam Senapati for his help and advice. I acknowledge with gratitude the help rendered by Late Sanjoy Poma of Ulukhunji. Thanks are due to Bidyut Bikash Senapati of Barapujia, Bhanu Amphi and her husband, Khagen Bordoloi of Owabari, Ruphina and Ranju Amchi of Tharakhunji, Sina Lumphuid and Jayanti Kholar of Amswaiparo, Krisna Kholar, a scholar wellversed in Tiwa traditional lore for their help and advice on various aspects of Tiwa culture and the great textile tradition.

I believe that I will not be able to repay my debt to Hunki Amchi, the great grand old lady of Tharakhunji whose knowledge in the textile tradition of the hill Tiwas is, indeed, astonishing. I find none second to her in the entire hill society of the Tiwas, who can throw light even on a most delicate aspect of her textile tradition and culture. I find not only her home but also the home of her daughter, Mandoi Amchi, at Tharakhunji, as my own home.
Lasti Mithi of Amkhalam is another old lady who is well-versed in handloom and textile tradition of the hill Tiwas. I express any sincere gratitude to her for her help in dealing with traditional dyestuff and dye and hair-dressing.

I must thank Prafulla Bhattacharya and Ramen Haloi for typing the thesis in a nice manner. I express thanks to Puneswar Chutia (Poona) who has helped me whenever I need his service.

I must express my sincere gratitude to my husband, Dr. Naren Kalita, Retired Head of the Department of Assamese, A.D.P College, Nagaon, who has been a source of inspiration, encouragement and help in may research work. My daughter, Suchibrata Kalita, and the two sons, Dr. Yeeman Kalita and Dewal Kalita rendered all kinds of help and support during the course of investigation. I appreciate them with love and affection.

Lastly, I place on record my sincere thanks to all informants whose cooperation and help were my mainstay in my journey into the core of the subject.
