SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY

Primary Sources:

Fiction

Secondary Sources:

Boter, Babs. “ The Great Power of My Mother Talking – Story,” Ethnicity and Identity in the work of Amy Tan and Maxine Hong

--------------------. “Food for All His Dead.” Asian American Authors.

Collier, Gordon. Rev. of Wife. The Journal of Indian Writing in English 5.2 (1977): 61- 63

Contemporary Literary Criticism Yearbook Volume

Crane, Ralph J. “Of Shattered Pots and Sink Holes. (Female) Identity in Bharati Mukherjee's Jasmine.” Span 26 Oct 1993 : 122-130

-------------------. Where Shall We Go This Summer. New Delhi: Vikas Publishing House, 1975.

-------------------. Voices in the City. London: Peter Owen, 1965.

Erickson, Peter. "‘Cast Out Alone\To Heal\And Recreate\ Ourselves:' Family –Based Identity in the Works of Alice Walker." College Language Association Journal 23(1979): 71-74.

Faymonville, Carmen. "Mukherjee’s Jasmine: Treatment of Self."

Hunt, Linda. "I could not figure out what was My Village' Gender vs Ethnicity in Maxine Hong Kingston's The Woman Warrior." MELUS 12.3 (1985): 5-12.

------. Address. Chinese American Student Association.

Table Talk. Microsoft Internet Explorer. p 1-3. 11 April 1991.

Tsai, Shih-Shan Henry. The Chinese Experience in America.

------. “Nobody/But Nobody/ Can make it out there Alone.”

----------------------------------------

