Acknowledgement

Writing the acknowledgment of the thesis is one of the most anticipated moments of the preparation of the manuscript. This is going to be the final pass on probably one of the most complex document that we will ever have to write on our own.

My first, and foremost, acknowledgment is dictated to Dr. K.S. Chandrasekar, Director, School of Management and Legal Studies, University of Kerala, Thiruvananthapuram. He proved to be an amazing Ph.D advisor: the one, who lets you do what you want, the one who believes in you, the one who first reacts to your ideas by thinking “why it is right?” (yes, so many people instead think “why is it wrong?”). The one who shows you the way to conduct ethically correct and interesting research without any self interest or political consideration. Without his able guidance, advice and encouragement, it would not have been possible to submit this research work. From the advisor-advisee relationship a fruitful work was born and I owe you a lot.

I am very much obliged to Dr. K.P.V Ramanakumar, Professor and Head, Department of Management studies, Sri Chandrasekharendra Saraswathi Viswa Maha Vidyalaya, Kanchipuram for the valuable assistance provided by him during my research work. I am very grateful to the other members of his department who were consistently helpful.

I am extremely grateful to Dr. Harikumar P. N, Professor, Department of Commerce, Catholicate College, Pathanamthitta for his valuable input regarding the analysis techniques used in this research and for his important feedback on my thesis. I can sincerely call him responsible for my learning of high performance. I would like to thank Dr. Manoj Krishnan C.G, Associate Professor, TKM Institute of Management, Kollam for his encouragement in doing my research.

I am extremely grateful to Prof. Priyamvada Devi, who was formerly the faculty member in the Department of English, S.N College Chengannur and Mr. Krishna Kumar R, ASO, Mahatma Gandhi University, Kottayam for devoting their valuable time for reading through the proofs.
I am grateful to all my teachers who have lighted the torch of edification and wisdom that helped me to reach here. I bend my head in respect towards them. I express my sincere thanks to the librarians of all libraries I have visited to collect necessary literature for the completion of the work.

I would now like to depart from “advisors” acknowledgment and particularly mention two people, well I should say two friends, Bijuraj Surendran and Archana Menon. Both have set a bar that has set my expectation about a successful Ph.D. Next my acknowledgment is dedicated to Renjini S. Nair, Anju Bist and Amrita Saigal. I was extremely lucky to work with them, some-one with whom I share so many points of interests in Marketing, so many similar objectives about what a fruitful research should be about.

I want to conclude this acknowledgment chapter by thanking all the people that I am proud to consider as my friends. They have been a constant support; they accepted my absence, my moods and my failures. Needless to say my heartfelt gratitude is also due to my beloved husband, Rasvin Ravindran. Without his support and love, this work would not have been possible.

And I am saying the best for the end; this work is literally the product of the product of my mother K. L Sudharma and my father K. Raghunathan, without their thorough education and advice I would simply not be writing those words. They deserve so much tribute that words are unable to even start to express how grateful I am to them. Of course words cannot express my gratitude to my sister Anu Vinod, my in laws T. K. Ravindran and Sulekha M and other family members for all the help and encouragement I received from them.

Above all, my heart rises in gratitude to My Guru, Navajyothisree Karunakara Guru for all his blessing showed up on me all through the days of this research work, before and after.
