ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am grateful to Dr. R.B. KUMAR, Professor, School of Management, Anna University, Chennai 25, for his keen involvement, constant encouragement and valuable guidance. With deep sense of sincerity, I offer him my unreserved thanks for being a perennial source of encouragement to me.

I owe my thanks to Prof. PAUL P. APPASAMY, Director, Madras School of Economics, Chennai – 25, Dr. V. NAGESWARAN, Director (I/C), School of Management, Anna University, Chennai 25, Dr. M. THENMOZHI, Associate Professor, Department of Science and Humanities, IIT Madras, Chennai, late Dr. S. AMBIRAJAN, Visiting Professor, Madras School of Economics, Chennai and Dr. P. NANDAKUMAR, Professor, Indian Institute of Management, Calicut who, with their considerable forbearance repeatedly cleared my doubts and imparted much knowledge especially about the little-known aspects of my topic and all inter-related issues.

Dr. VINISH KATHURIA, Associate Professor, Madras School of Economics, Chennai has been one whose services have been of inassumable worth in the formation of this volume. What I owe to him rises beyond the elastic limitations of language. I also remain beholden to Dr. K. PUSHPANGATHAN, Fellow, Centre for Development Studies, Trivandrum for his exceedingly valuable help and personal kindness to me. To the Staff of MSE, my most sincere thanks for their unfailing consideration.

I am also grateful to my parents, brothers, sisters and friends for being a perennial source of encouragement to me.

T.J. JOSEPH