LIST OF TABLES

TABLE NO.   CONTENTS OF THE TABLES.

CHAPTER NO.

Chapter -II

1. Distribution of respondents according to their age.
2. Distribution of respondents according to their marital stats.
3. Distribution of respondents according to their nativity.
4. Distribution of respondents according to their education.
5. Distribution of respondents according to their family.
6. Distribution of respondents according to their caste.
7. Distribution of respondents according to their religion.
8(a) Distribution of respondents according to their own income.
8(b) Distribution of respondents according to their total family income.

Chapter-III

Distribution of respondents according to their
1(a) Distribution of respondents according to their choice and profession.
1(b) Distribution of respondents on the basis of reasons prompting the choice of profession.
2. Distribution of respondents according to the reason for starting practice.
3(a) Distribution of respondents according to the family members in same profession.

3(b) Distribution of respondents according to the types of support given by relatives in same profession.

4. Distribution of respondents in accordance with the type of practice they indulge in.

5. Distribution of respondents in accordance with the type of cases they generally deal with.

6(a) Distribution of respondents on the basis when they started practicing law.

6(b) Distribution of respondents regarding their intention to practice after marriage.

7. Distribution of respondents according to type of service provided to the clients.

8. Distribution of respondents according to their work procurement.

9. Distribution of respondents according to their choice of clients.

10. Distribution of respondents according to fixing fee charges.

11. Distribution of respondents according to their reaction on non-payment of settled fee.

Chapter-IV

1. Distribution of respondents according to level of profession among them.

2. Distribution of respondents according to general systematic knowledge and training.
3. Distribution of respondents according to service orientation.
4. Distribution of respondents according to authority over clients.
5. Distribution of respondents according to Code of Ethics.
6. Distribution of respondents according to Professional Association.

Chapter-V
1. Distribution of respondents whether or not (difficulties) they faced at entry stage.
2. Distribution of respondents according to the kind of difficulties they faced at joining stage.
3. Distribution of respondents regarding the attitude of male colleagues.
4. Distribution of respondents according to the attitude of Judges towards respondents.
5. Distribution of respondents by their feeling of being handicapped because of their sex.
6. Distribution of respondents on the basis of tension felt by them while arguing a case.
7. Distribution of respondents on the basis of fees taken from clients.
8. Distribution of respondents according to the extent of success in profession.
9. Distribution of respondents according to their choice to remain in same profession or change it.