ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The present study entitled Creating Space: A Comparative Study of Dalit and African American Autobiography was undertaken under the guidance of Dr. Hameed Khan, Professor and Head Department of English, Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar Marathwada University, Aurangabad. I take this opportunity to express my gratitude to him for his able guidance and patient understanding of my problems. His literary insights and critical acumen, for me, will always be a model to be emulated. It was during our very first discussion on the topic that he made me realize that research is a very lengthy process and that it involves lot of hard work, commitment and devotion. These words of respected Dr. Hameed Khan have given me inspiration from the initial stage of my thesis till it took the form of this bound copy and will help me through out my life.

I offer my sincere thanks to the teaching and non-teaching staff of the Department of English, the Library staff and the Librarian for their co-operation and their ready to help nature. I am also thankful to the Librarian and the Library Staff, Hostel Manager and to the Director of Indo American Centre for International Studies, Osmania University Campus, Hyderabad for providing the required study material relevant for my thesis and for excellent accommodation which accelerated my spirit.

I cannot express my gratitude in words towards my father Purushottam and my mother Dr. Ranjana who encouraged me for the study and proved an inspiration to me. I am very thankful to my wife
Veena who is always with me and helped me to get the thesis in complete format. I am also thankful to my sisters Anuja, Dhanashri and Deepali who always proved helpful and my brother Prasad and all my friends who helped and encouraged me for the study.

I am very thankful to Dr. Shilpa Despande because, without her help this thesis would not have come in its complete form. Ex. MLA late Hon. Vasantrao Kale encouraged me for this study often. I offer my condolence to him and acknowledge his encouragement and guidance.

Ashwin Purushottam Ranjanikar.
