I have three people to thank, in equal measure, for guiding me through these years. Vijay, Veronica and Heinrich have been fantastic scientific mentors and, equally importantly, have been wonderful and fun people to work with. In their labs, which have been all embracing, I have lived and worked with people from far flung corners of the world, both geographical and ideological. Never is it dull when you spend your time with such a mad diversity of people. And for this I want to thank everyone, past and present, in these labs.
