ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It gives me immense pleasure and satisfaction in placing on record my sincere gratitude and overwhelming indebtedness to my esteemed supervisor Professor B.G Banerjee, Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for his dexterous guidance and valuable suggestions that enabled me to bring this study in the shape of a Ph. D thesis in its present form. His ennobling influence and innumerable qualities of head and heart will remain indelibly inscribed on my impressionable mind. I am equally indebted to Professor R.N Vashisht, Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, my co-supervisor, for his able guidance and support throughout the course of the present study.

I am extremely grateful to Professor R.K Pathak, Chairperson of the Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for facilitating my work by allowing the departmental facilities and clearing infrastructural bottlenecks.

My most effusive thanks are also to Dr. A.K Sinha, Reader, Department of Anthropology, for his constant help and guidance in analysing the data, alongwith constructive criticism and useful suggestions. But for his active involvement it would have been really difficult for me to complete the study. My thanks also go to all the illustrious members of the teaching faculty of the department for their affectionate considerations.

The co-operation and help extended to me by the office and the laboratory staff of the department are also thankfully acknowledged.

To my family, I owe more than I can express. It was the inspiration and the love showered on me by my parents and my grandmother that sustained me during the course of the study. My special thanks are to my elder brother Anupam and my younger sister Pooja who helped me to bring this monumental task to completion. I also thank my friend Jitesh for his help and assistance during the difficult period of data collection in the field.

Last but not the least, I thankfully acknowledge the encouragement and help received from Mrs. Shyama Negi, the Area Councillor, Municipal Corporation, Chandigarh for persuading the womenfolk of the Kumhar Colony to co-operate and provide necessary information during the interviews. I am also thankful to the Kumhar Colony girls and their mothers for sparing time, sharing views freely and confiding with me even in matters so personal to them.

In the end, I wish to thank the Almighty for keeping me in good health and blessing me with the strength to achieve whatever little I have in this venture. I know for sure that without His grace it could never have been possible for me to take the study to its logical conclusion.
