ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Doing research is like a voyage. This Ph.D. thesis is a sum of my wanderings in the hillstreams of Himalayas and putting all the data together. The fascinating world of hillstreams was shown to me by Prof. M.S. Johal, my mentor and supervisor, to whom I am highly indebted for the continued guidance and inspiration. His scholastic supervision, innovations and availability at odd hours have helped me to achieve this goal. I shall always owe a deep sense of gratitude to him.

I am deeply grateful to Prof. K.K. Tandon, my co-supervisor and Principal Scientist, Indo-U.S. Project, Panjab University, Chandigarh for his ongoing interest, advise and encouragement.

Special thanks to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for providing the funds (vide Grant Agreement No. INT/FWS30) to carry out the present investigations.

I owe special thanks to Dr. Neil B. Armantrout, Fish Ecologist, Bureau of Land Management, Oregon, Eugene, U.S.A. for traveling with us in inhospitable terrains and guiding with his valuable tips on hillstream ecology. His enthusiasm was commendable.

Ms. Kimberly McClurg from the Division of International Conservation, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of Interior, Washington DC, U.S.A. have been the motivator and her help in everyway deserves special thanks.

I warmly acknowledge Dr. Kuldip Kumar, Chief Warden and Director of Fisheries, Himachal Pradesh, Bilaspur and his staff for providing all the field facilities and the impetus to carry on the work.

I would like to thank Prof. S.K. Taneja, Chairman, Department of Zoology, Panjab University, Chandigarh for providing the necessary laboratory facilities and the timely support in the completion of this work.

Prof. H.S. Banyal, Former Chairman, Department of Zoology, Panjab University, Chandigarh helped in every possible way which I gratefully acknowledge. Prof. S.M. Handa, Dean, Science Faculty, Panjab University, Chandigarh and Prof. S.S. Chaudhary deserves special thanks for reposing enough faith in me at the time of selection in this project.

I am also thankful to Mr. M.L. Sharma, Central Instrumentation Laboratory, Panjab University, Chandigarh for his moral support and valuable help in the SEM investigations.
Special credit goes to Mrs. Kuldeep Johal and Sunny for support and help to me to reach my destination.

I also applaud the absolutely indispensable support of my colleagues, Anil, Onkar, Harinder, Harcharan and Dr. R.K. N. companionship not only made this scientific journey easier but also through those times when one is caught at emotional crossroads.

Dr. Hamid Reza Esmaeili, Lecturer, Department of University of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources, Gor, deserves special thanks for helping me in the statistical analysis.

Dr. Anuj Sawhney, my senior, helped me with his construction which I gratefully acknowledge. Remarkable thanks to my juniors, Manjot, Upasana and Ravneet for their incalculable help in every way.

The moral support provided by my friends Dev, Aman, Sukh Ranjan, Balwinder, Harjinder, Sukhjit, Sony and Dalbir have hei difficult times and I shall always be thankful to them.

I wish to warmly acknowledge many other people who ass encouraged me in this endeavour. These include Mr. Yoginder Mr. Mukesh and Mr. Prabhakar for providing every possible Mr. Navtej Singh for carrying out the photographic work.

Thanks are also due to Ms. Sonal, Computer - cum - docu assistant in the Indo-US Project for rendering invaluable support.

Remarkable credit goes to Mr. Vineet Makkar, Shashi Kai Shamim Ahmed Khan, Susheel Kumar and Surinder Kumar of Zoya for typing the manuscript and working with me in wee hours.

Last but not the least, I would like to acknowledge the contribu parents and elder brother, Harish and Bhabhiji whose constant su encouragement kept me going through thick and thin. A warm ti special regards to Ranjot Bhaï Sahib and family for immense support these years. My niece, Pavni deserves a special thanks for all th showered while I was working towards the thesis.

It would be highly unbecoming of me if I do not thank God at as I drew all my strength from the almighty.

Date : 23/05/2002

(YOGESH KUMAR)