ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The present research Lala Lajpat Rai and Education is inspired by the seminar on Lala Lajpat in Retrospect held in the Panjab University, Chandigarh in May 2000 to explore the possibilities of meaningful research on Lajpat Rai in the national context. This seminar revealed clearly that Lajpat Rai's concerns went beyond politics and even economy and education.

In the course of my research work I benefited immensely from discussions and insights from Professor Indu Banga and Professor J.S. Dhanki both in the Department of History, Panjab University. I am extremely thankful to them for the valuable time and interest they have shown at all stages of this dissertation. I am grateful to my Supervisor Dr Reeta Grewal for her cooperation and constant encouragement and guidance to the completion of this work.

The resources of several libraries were drawn upon in the course of this work. The libraries of the Departments of History, Education, Philosophy and Economics of the Panjab University, Chandigarh. The A.C. Joshi Library, Panjab University and the Dwaraka Das Library, Chandigarh needs special mention as they provides the primary sources on the subject. I also visited the National Archives of India, New Delhi, Punjab State Archives, Chandigarh and the library at the Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar to collect source material for my research work.

I am also thankful to Gulshan Graphics for the preparation of the thesis. I would like to mention Mr. S. Sharma Photographer of Dwaraka Das Library for his help in providing rare photographs. Mr. Vipin Narula of Photovision was helpful in scanning the photographs. Last but not the least, I am very thankful to my family, specially my daughter Devika. This work would not have been possible without their cooperation.
