ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It gives me deep sense of satisfaction and pride that I have been able to complete this extensive work and socio-culturally relevant research project. The present thesis is the outcome of the continuous effort for the past few years and during this sociological study a number of people have given their valuable help and suggestions to make it more meaningful and logical. It is very difficult to set priority to name all these personalities but still I would name a few who have made all the differences.

The success of work largely depends on the person under whose guidance it is completed. I must first of all express my heart felt gratitude to my supervisor Prof. Mohinderjit Kaur Teja, whose patience, clarity of thought and scholarly advice has been invaluable. Her suggestions, detailed discussions and constant encouragement in laying down the format of the study were extremely helpful in improving the quality of work.

I also extend my great thanks to Prof. Sherry Sabbarwal, Chairperson Department of Sociology, for her cooperation at every stage. I am also thankful to all the faculty members, librarians and all the staff members of the department for helping me in my research work.

Further I am thankful to all the respondents and authorities of the old age home for the patience, cooperation and confidence they have reposed in me.

No words in deed can express my feelings for my father Mr. J.S. Virk to whom I am indebted for a life time, my younger sister Harjeet Virk, who were a big source of inspiration for me to undertake this arduous task, I am especially most grateful to my husband, Mr. Deepinder Sidhu for his steadfast support in all my efforts to get this research work completed efficiently and in time.

I would like to thank all those who in one way or another might have helped me in the project but whose names might not have appeared above owing to paucity of space. Lastly, to the Almighty who gave me strength to complete this work.
