ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am extremely grateful to my supervisor Professor Anand Bhushan, Former Head of the Department of Education, Panjab University, Chandigarh. Professor Bhushan supervised this work right from its inception to completion; without his constant guidance and encouragement this study would not have seen the present shape. I am equally grateful to Professor Malvinder Ahuja, Department of Education, Panjab University, who proved herself a great source of inspiration for me and without whose kindness and able guidance, this study would have not been completed so smoothly.

I express my gratitude to Professor Raj Gupta, Chairperson of the Department of Education, for encouragement and support extended to me to initiate and complete this study. My sincere thanks are also due to teachers of the Department of Education who assisted me in various ways whenever I approached them for help. I appreciate the sincere cooperation extended by Mr. S. Bhandari, the administrative staff of the Department.

I thank the officials of the Ministry of Education, Department of Education, and District Education Offices of the Government of Nepal and the persons working with the libraries and the study centers I visited in the course of this study. Neither passing mention nor brief thanks would commensurate the helps I received from the head-teachers, teachers and SMC members of the schools I visited, the parents of the dropout children, and the dropout children themselves. Without their willing cooperation, this study would have not seen the present shape.

I am thankful to Professors Krishna Khanal and Pramod Kumar Jha of Tribhuvan University for many helps and continued encouragement they provided me in the pursuit of this study. My sincere thanks go to Dr. Krishna Paudel, Mr. Hari Sharma, Mr. Hridaya Chandra Baidya, Mr. Shiba Ram Koirala and Ms. Pratistha Baidya Pradhan for encouragement, support and help in different ways. I am also thankful to Tribhuvan University for granting me a study leave for the period of this work.

I am grateful to University Grant Commission, Nepal for providing me partial grants for my research endeavour. I am equally grateful to SNV Nepal for providing me SIRF research fellowship for completion of my Ph. D. research.

Finally, I owe a special debt to my wife, Sona, our son and daughter, Bipul and Sweta, who spared me and shouldered all the household responsibilities during my heavy involvement in this study.
