ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Acknowledgement is much more than 'Confession', indeed it is confirmation of 'feelings' - feelings from within. Almighty is omnipotent, omnipresent and absolute and listens to the feeblest of the inner voice to make the dreams come true. The successful completion of this research work has just reaffirmed my faith in 'Him'. Not easy to choose between "Gobind and Guru" but me lucky to have both around rather trinity; I was fortunate enough to be under dual supervision of Professor R. K. Sharma and Professor Charanjeev Singh.

Feelings are so overwhelming that no words can express these towards my mentor, guide and Supervisor, Professor R.K. Sharma, Ex-Dean Faculty of Arts, Fellow, Panjab University and eminent scholar of Public Administration. I never knew the importance of light house before starting this research work and in all honesty have to admit that Professor Sharma is my light house, who guided me, gave me direction and made me to complete this work at this juncture of my career and life. My gratitude to him is unfathomable. His 'never say die' approach inspired me in entirety.

My heartfelt thanks are due to Professor, Charanjeev Singh whose unparalleled research acumen and critical appreciation of the concepts and ideas helped me in abundance to shape up this research work. Swift flow of his ideas and observations helped in a manner to drop everything superfluous from my efforts and rendered everything graceful. He is a gem of a person with qualities of head and heart.

I must not miss the opportunity to thank Professor B.S. Ghuman, Dean Faculty of Arts for his much needed support in carrying out this research work.

My thanks are also due to Professor Sudhir Sharma, Professor Ramanjit Johal, Chairperson, Department of Public Administration and other faculty members of the Department.

I am lucky in more than one ways in the sense that a very committed team of research scholars under the guidance of my both the Supervisors always inspired me helped me and cooperated with me in the completion of this work. I must make special mention of B. Komow, Raghav Khanna who spared their valuable time to make the project a reality.

Indeed, must not forget to thank my family members who always supported me in this endavour and my special thanks are due to my wife for her consistent support to me in the research efforts.

My thanks also due to the Principals of the select colleges and the teachers as well as the students for helping me in collection of primary data. My thanks are also due to office staff of the department of Public Administration for assisting me in completing the formalities.

I have dedicated this work to my revered mother. I owe all the mistakes and give credits to all those who helped me in this project.
