ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My first thanks are exclusively reserved for this great seat of learning called The Panjab University, Chandigarh that provided me with this invaluable opportunity to meet and work with some of the most extra-ordinary minds in the wonderful field of theatre.

I express my heartiest thanks to my guide and supervisor, Prof. (Dr.) Mahendra Kumar, the founder-member of the Department of Indian Theatre. I am fortunate to have received his motivation, encouragement, teaching and support throughout my research and stay at the University. His knowledge, experience, and time was endlessly available to me to complete this research. I would also like to express my gratitude to Ms Shveta for contributing her time, expertise and support at all levels, in this process, especially in making me understand the nuances of conceptual similarities of my mother-tongue Persian and English. I am also most thankful to all the staff, fellow-researchers and the accomplished faculty of the Department of Indian Theatre who immensely helped me at every step of my research.

I am grateful to my dedicated data collectors, Marjan Motamedi who has maintained her commitment and enthusiasm for this research. Also, I would like to thank Hamdollah Khaje Hoseyni for his consultation throughout this research.

Great thanks also to all the observers who helped run the program.

My deep gratitude goes to Dr. Ahmadreza Baghestani statistics advisor of this research. I would also like to thank Afshin Ghasemi and Mahshid Hoseyni for their co-ordination to train children for taking role in short clips. As well as I am obliged to Hoseyn Rahimi for granting access to environment and equipment of Khajeh Nezamol molk cultural house. Alan Hermesch for his precious help in my work.

Thanks also to Fariba Shafiani who has opened her Preschool to me for research and always supported me with her knowledge and experiences. I thank the parents and children who volunteered many mornings to participate in this project. Without question, you are the reason for increased knowledge and progress in this field. I will long remember your faith in the project, your tenacity in the face of difficulty. Thanks, Mom and Dad, for providing the encouragement and financial support to get this degree completed.
