ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This research work was made possible with the help and encouragement of several persons and the fellowships awarded by a number of international agencies. The work on this theme was begun with the help of a research Fellowship granted to me for one year by Instituto Camões, Lisbon, which enabled me to work in the Archives of Portugal and Rome. On my return to Kerala, a three year fellowship was granted by Comissão dos Descobrimentos, Lisbon for conducting further researches in India, which was again followed by a grant from the same institution to visit the archives of Portugal in the final stages of my research. Meanwhile, the Maxmuller Bhavan (Goethe Institut) of Madras had given me a scholarship to learn German language for consulting the relevant German documents. In 1996 I was awarded a UGC-sponsored DAAD fellowship (Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst, Bonn-under Indo-German Exchange Programme) for twenty eight months for conducting researches in Germany and to work in European archives as well as libraries. I wish to place on record my indebtedness to these institutions.

I would like to express my gratitude in a very special way, to Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst-Bonn, for the Fellowship which enable me to finish this work. DAAD also helped me to register at the Heidelberg University, Germany under "Sandwich Programme" and to conduct research under Prof. Dr. Dietmar Rothermund of Südasien Institute. I am deeply indebted to Dr. Christa Klaus and S. Conradi of DAAD office Bonn who were very prompt and extremely helpful in providing facilities and means for conducting research in the various archives of Germany and other parts of Europe. I recall with gratitude the prompt help given to me by the Directors and Staff of the various archives and libraries of Lisbon, Evora, Rome, Munich, Augsburg, Bremen, Aachen, Heidelberg, Dillingen/Donau, Wien, Goa, Madras, Pondicherry and Kerala.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to Professor Dr. K.S. Mathew, my Ph.D. supervisor and Head of the History Department at Pondicherry University. It is he, who introduced me to the history of trade, and as an ideal supervisor, he, with encouraging and inspiring guidance, instilled in me a keen desire and confidence to undertake this research. At every stage, he had been a source of reference and inspiration. I have a special debt of gratitude to Professor Dr. Dietmar Rothermund of Südasien Institut, Heidelberg University, Germany who guided my research for two years in Germany and who is an erudite scholar on Indo-European economic history. It is with great pleasure and deep gratitude that I recall his scholarly guidance which made me see the theme in wider Indo-European context. Prof. Rothermund had taken pains to go through the first and the final drafts of my thesis and had been of immense help in all levels of my research in Heidelberg. My debts are also due to the other staff of the Department of History of Südasien Institute, Heidelberg University and its Librarians, who were extremely kind and helpful in providing all the required facilities for my work. It is with deep gratitude that I recall the immense help and prompt service which I received from both the teaching and non-teaching staff of the Department of History Pondicherry University. I would like to mention gratefully the advice and guidance drawn from conversations with eminent scholars like Professor Luis Filipe Thomaz, Prof. R. Hildebrandt, Dr. Wolfgang Knabe, Prof. Dr. Teotonio de Soua, Prof. Dr. A.R. Kulkarni and Dr. Ranabir Chakravarti. Moreover, Prof. Luis Filipe Thomaz, Prof. R. Hildebrandt and Dr. Wolfgang Knabe allowed me to make use of their rare personal collections. I am very much grateful for the help of my Portuguese friends like João Manuel de Almeida Teles e Cunha and José Alberto Rodrigues da Silva Tavim, who introduced me to some interesting Portuguese documents and themes. I recall with gratitude the teachers and the various institutions which helped me to learn different languages, essential for consulting the relevant documents. I pay obeisance to Fr. George Padinjarekutt and late Fr. John Kunnappilly who taught me Latin and Sanskrit languages respectively in the seminaries, the knowledge of which was a great help throughout my research. I place on record my indebtedness to Fr. Cajetan Coelho, my teacher of Dutch language at the Department of History, Pondicherry University, the teachers of l'Alliance Française, Pondicherry who gave me lessons on French language, the teachers of Faculdade de Letras, Universidade de Lisboa, who taught me Portuguese, and the teachers of Goethe Institut, Pune as well as Bremen (Germany), where I learnt German language. I acknowledge my debt also to the Faculdade de Ciências Sociais e Humanas da Universidade Nova de Lisboa for giving me the special permission to attend the Portuguese paleography course offered by the University.
I am greatly indebted to H. Nischk, the cartographer of the Department of Geography of the Südasien Institut, Heidelberg, Germany, who designed the maps for this work. I wish to record my special thanks to Bishop Dom José Policarp and Pe. Manuel Clemente of the Seminario dos Olivais, Lisbon as well as Abbot Franciskus, P. Suitbert Jaspers and Bro. Joseph of Benediktinerabtei, Heidelberg for the various helps and the arrangements made for my stay in Portugal and Germany. I am very much grateful to Mar George Punnakkottil, the Bishop of Kothamangalam and Mar Joseph Pallickaparambil, the Bishop of Palai, for their encouragement and moral support. My special thanks are due to the Manager and the Principal of St. Thomas College, Palai, Kerala, where I teach history, for giving me the necessary permission to take duty leave and to undertake this research. I remember with special gratitude, the immense and timely help rendered by Shri. P.J.Joseph, the Education Minister of Kerala by doing the needful to avail myself of the leave provisions and benefits of UGC granted to DAAD Fellows. I remember with immense gratitude Petra Gesche, Mathias and Margaret Frenz who helped me immensely during my research in Germany. My gratitude is also due to all my well-wishers and friends who helped me in one way or other. Finally, I would like to thank the staff of St. Joseph Computing, Pondicherry for having computersied this work promptly and neatly.
