ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

On the completion of this long journey by the grace of God, I sincerely want to acknowledge and express my gratitude and appreciation to all those who guided, motivated, and supported me throughout.

Those who educate children well are more to be honored than parents. We think of effective teachers we have had over the years with a sense of recognition, but those who have touched our humanity, we remember with a deep sense of gratitude. It is in this context that, I am eternally indebted to my esteemed guide, Professor Jitendra Mohan, President, Asian Association of Applied Psychology and a distinguished educationist, who in spite of busy academic schedules spared time to supervise my highly demanding research work. I admit that the conception and culminations of this research work was due to the high professional quality of supervision and inspiration I received from him. I consider it a pride and privilege to have carried out my study under Professor Jitendra Mohan, an eminent psychologist and a well known figure in international psychology. It would remain improbable to conceptualize how much intellectually poorer I could have been if I missed the life chance of sharing his great experience and knowledge and receiving a personalized academic instructions imported in a friendly manner under his guidance.

Similarly, I would like to acknowledge and appreciate the role of my worthy co-supervisor Professor Meena Sehgal, Chairperson, Department of Psychology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, whose thought provoking suggestions, well developed sense of details, constructive criticisms and expertise in the subtle art of research supervision enabled me to reach a standard sufficient for a professional in psychology. Professor Meena Sehgal is a teacher I would continue to adore for her extraordinary level of academic competence, brilliance and commitment to quality education. I must confess that her distinction and experience in the field of research methodology was instrumental in the scientific shaping of this work. I would remain ever indebted to her.

Their critical comments, disciplinary and perfectionist attitude and encouragement enabled the fruitful completion of this work.

I am extremely grateful to my father, Dr. Malek Mohammad Farokhzad, mother, Mrs. Parvin Dokht, and brother, Pouya, who in spite of great difficulties in life remained a source of emotional support and encouragement throughout my work and without whose support it would have been difficult for me to complete this research work. I would like to thank them with all my heart by dedicating this dissertation to them.

I would like to express my sincere thank to all the teaching faculty and non teaching staff of Department of Psychology, Panjab University, Chandigarh for their cooperation. I also appreciate and thank all my friends for all the help and support they provided.

I place on record my gratitude for the principals, teachers and students of Indian and Iranian schools who provided the basic data for this cross cultural research and made this work possible. Without their help, it would have been difficult for me to complete this research work.

Finally, I would like to thank all those who helped me directly or indirectly in carrying out this task and finishing the journey I was on, but I have not mentioned by name.

"I could not have done this work without you"
