Acknowledgement

Women's studies have taken a strong foothold in the higher education system of the present day. It leads to (i) an understanding of the place of women in our society and how it can build up an awareness of the social processes that inhibit or enhance women's potentialities, (ii) an understanding of the extent of oppression and subordination and how and why they take place, (iii) an appreciation of the strengths and weaknesses in the education system and women's response to these situations.

The above aspects had inspired me to take up the case of Muslim Women - past and present for my study. Many people whom I met or consulted have been extremely supportive and have contributed immensely to the shaping of this work.

At the outset I record my sincere thanks to Dr. K.S. Lakshmi, Secretary, Meenakshi College for women, who not only permitted me to do the research work but also encouraged me throughout the course of my study. But for her constant support, I am sure that I would not have been in a position to complete this work.

I would like to thank my Supervisor, Dr. R. Thandavan, Professor and Head, Anna Centre for Public Affairs, University of Madras, who has been a source of great strength throughout this endeavour. Infact, his constant attention and unstinting support at various stages of this work have been primarily responsible for making this research work possible.

I would like to record my thanks to Dr. (Ms) V. Vakula, Head of the Department of History, Meenakshi College for women for her total involvement and support in every stage of my research work. I also thank all my colleagues in the department for their cooperation.
