ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This thesis is the end of my journey in obtaining my Ph.D. I have not traveled in a vacuum in this Journey. This thesis has been kept on track and been seen through to completion with the support and encouragement of numerous people including my well wishers, my friends, colleagues and various institutions. At the end of my thesis, I would like to thank all those people who made this thesis possible and an unforgettable experience for me.

It is my distinct honour and privilege to have worked under the able guidance and supervision of Prof. T.R. Manjunath. I am extremely grateful to him for inspiring, encouraging and guiding me to seek a deeper understanding of the discipline, and for invaluable comments and suggestions that he gave during the entire course of my research. I gratefully acknowledge him for having sent me to the Institute for Social and Economic Change (ISEC) where I worked under Dr. M. Mahadev, Member, KP.S.C., and got an opportunity to interact with Prof. Abdul Aziz. I am greatly indebted to Prof. Aziz for suggesting me this topic and for whatever I have achieved in my research career. I have found him to be highly principled. His enthusiasm and integral view of research has made a deep impression on me, and I will ever remain grateful to him.

I am extremely grateful to my beloved mother Mrs. Nooran Bi and my brothers Hayath khan, Ismail Khan, Shabir Khan, Jabir Khan, Khaleel Khan, Rasool Khan and Zabiulla Khan and my sisters for their encouragement throughout, as always, for which my mere expression of thanks likewise does not suffice, my education, and I am equally indebted to them for their support.

This thesis would not have been possible without the help, support and patience of my teacher Prof. G. Narayna Rao, Head of the Dept. of Studies in Economics, Government First Grade College Bhadravathi. I also extend my heartily gratitude to my ex-colleagues at ISEC, Dr. R. R. Biradar Asst. Prof,
Department of Economics, Karnataka University, and Dr. Puttaswamaiah, Asst. Prof., Department of Economics, Bangalore University for their valuable suggestions at various levels of my research work.

Special thanks are also due to Mrs. S.R. Madyal, Principal Government P.U. College, Shimoga, for encouraging me to take up research and her needful suggestions. I am very grateful to Mrs Sandya Bai, Lecturer at Government P.U. College, Bhadravathi for her valuable help. Thanks are also due to Dr. Bharthi Principle Sir. M.V. College for her good advice. I have been fortunate to get sincere friends wherever I have gone. I am very much grateful to Dr Prasanna, Krishna Gowda, Dr. Chandrashekar, Vishwa Kumar, A.K. Chandrappa and my past and present colleagues for their co-operation in different stages of research work.

I wish to thank my father-in-law Mr. Abdul Rehman and my mother-in-law Mrs. Ulfath Jabeen, and brother in-law Imran and Rizwan for their moral support. Most of the data described in this thesis would not have been obtained without an assistance of our beloved M.L.A, Mr B.K. Sangameshwara, for which I am extremely grateful to him.

Finally yet importantly, Words failed to express my real feeling towards my wife Tehseen, who constantly encouraged me and not only stood by me to carry study but also her promptness and care in typing the thesis. This helped me a lot to work for hours together tirelessly. I doubt that I will ever be able to convey my appreciation fully, but I owe her my eternal gratitude. I also thank my daughter Suha Saher and Anas Yasir Khan for their love.

For any errors or inadequacies that may remain in this work, of course, the responsibility is entirely my own.
