ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I was helped by many in the course of my research work, and knowing full well that acknowledging all of them in this brief note is an impossible task, I have ventured to do so.

I would like to acknowledge the enormous support and guidance offered to my supervisor, Dr Laxmana P. His suggestions, insight, and constructive criticisms have provided the necessary inspiration to enable me to continue on this thesis.

My sincere thanks also go to the business owners and managers who so willingly participated in the study, and provided invaluable opinion and insight based on their real business practices. The unorganised retailers whom I met, responded to my questions and queries inspite of their busy schedules and inconveniences caused to them. I am obliged to them. During the course of my field study in Bengaluru, Mysore, Hubli, and Davangere, my well wishers enthusiastically shared my responsibilities. I would like to add special thanks my students who helped me in providing the list of unorganized retailers.

Dr. Anitha H S, Dr. G T Govindappa, Dr. S S Hugar and Dr. Chandan Chavadi with whom I had discussions during the course of my research work provided me useful insights into the area. A number of scholars from India and abroad, to whom I made a request for published research papers, responded positively, and these research papers have triggered enthusiasm in the field of my research. I remain grateful to all of them.

My research work would not have been so dear to my heart but for the total freedom from my regular teaching assignments in the college, a privilege by the institutions I served during the period. I owe a deep debt to all of them.

Finally, I wish to thank my husband, Mr. Rajesh B Ganjali, and daughter, Sristhi R Ganjali for their love, understanding, patience, and practical assistance. My engagement with research caused a lot of inconvenience and isolation to my family, still they put up with the same. Without their condition support this thesis would never been completed. I am grateful to them for having given their time for my academic advancement.

Finally I would like to dedicate this thesis to my father and father-in-law, Late Shri Suryakant Kokatnur and Late Shri Basavaraj Ganjali respectively.
