ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This research work was carried out at the Sociology Department, Jnana Sahyadri, Shankaraghatta, under the guidance of Professor H M Panchaksharaiah, Professor of Sociology and Social Work. He has been instrumental in my undertaking this study and completing it successfully. I am indebted to him for his support, supervision and help and also for providing me with an opportunity to carry out this work in the esteemed university.

This study owes special thanks to a number of scholars who have given support to me intellectually or otherwise. I would also like to express my gratitude to Professor S N Sangita, Head of the Centre for Political Institutions, Governance and Development (CPIGD) at the Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, for his kindness and valuable suggestions made in the context of data collection and analysis. Besides these, he was very generous in granting me leave of absence at the time of finalising the thesis. I am grateful to him for his encouragement and unstinted support which made it possible for me to complete the thesis successfully and in time.

These words of acknowledgements would be incomplete without mentioning the name of Sri N Boopathi, at the CPIGD, ISEC, who has been of great support and help in analysing the data and assistance in typing and alignment of draft chapters. I am thankful to him for his kindness.

I owe a special gratitude to the Vice-Chancellor of Kuvempu University, Prof. B S Sherigara, to the Registrar of the University, Sri Shivanna, IFS, and to its Deputy Registrar, Sri S Basavanna, who have provided me all the necessary support in fulfilling certain official procedure, which enabled the completion and submission of the thesis within the stipulated period.

My sincere thanks are due to Dr. Ramegowda, Chairman, Dr. Chandrashekar and Sri Anjanappa, Lecturer, Department of Sociology, Kuvempu University, Shankarghatta, Shimoga, for providing academic facilities and encouragement during the course of this study.
