References

biodegradation by newly isolated marine-derived fungus Cochliobolus lunatus strain CHR4D. J. Microbiol. 52, 908–917.

Sphingomonas yanoikuyae JAR02. Environ. Pollut. 151, 669-677.

Robson, R., Dennis, E., 1997. The size, shape, and hydration of nonionic surfactant in the different sewer deposits in the Le Marais’ catchment (Paris, France):

strain PNB capable of degrading structurally diverse aromatic compounds. J.
Bioremed. Biodeg. 4, 173.

Am. Chem. Soc. 211, 106.

Salomons, W., 1995. Environmental impact of metals derived from mining activities:

aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs) and organochlorines (OCs) in bottom

