ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It gives me immense pleasure to place on record my deep sense of gratitude and thanks to my learned guide and Senior Professor M. RAMADASS for his special interest in me which enabled to do this doctoral thesis. But for his constant guidance and continuous endeavor, it would not have been possible for me to complete this dissertation work. He involved himself at every stage, of this dissertation work to make it analytical oriented for the ultimate benefit of Pondicherry, its economy and people.

I am thankful to Dr. R. PADMANAABHAN, I.A.S., Development Commissioner and Thiru B.M. KASIM former Director, Planning and Research Department for having permitted me to pursue this dissertation work.

I am very much thankful to Tmt K. REVADY, Statistical Officer, Directorate of Economics and Statistics, Government of Pondicherry who has spared her time for culling out various details required for this dissertation work and taken much pain in correcting the manuscripts with utmost sincerity and dedication. Tmt.R.SOUCILA, Statistical Inspector of the Directorate also needs to be mentioned for providing me the required data whenever required. Tmt R. ADELE, Statistical Officer deserves special mention for helping me in locating the data and arranging the bibliography. Thiru S. PACQUIRISAMY, Thiru K. BALASUBRAMANI and Thiru.K.RAMAMOURTHY RAO, Statistical Inspectors deserve special appreciation for having fed the data into computer and getting the printouts at the infant stage of the thesis. Tmt S. SHANTHADEVI and Thiru D. MUNISAMY also helped in comparing the drafts. I owe a great deal of gratitude to them.

My former Stenographer Tmt B. BANU needs to be thanked for her patience in taking long dictation and getting printouts in the shortest possible time. My thanks goes to all Officers and staff of the Directorate of Economics and Statistics who helped directly or indirectly in completing the thesis. Special mention may be made of Thiru G. BALU and Thiru T. SATHIYAMOORTHY, Computors who helped me in conducting Impact studies. I am grateful to the sample respondents for providing necessary primary data for this study.
Tmt B. GAVOURY, Data Processing Assistant needs special mention for her co-operation in bringing out the dissertation work in a very nice manner by sparing her holidays. Thiru S. RAMESH, L.D.C., needs a word of my appreciation for sparing his time for my sake to assist in my dissertation work and providing necessary secretarial assistance.

Tmt SUBBULAKSHMI, Librarian, Madras Institute of Development Studies, Chennai, Thiru MEIBALAN, Deputy Librarian, Pondicherry University and Thiru MURALI, Section Officer (Academic), Pondicherry University have helped me a lot by providing necessary input in the form of books and articles whenever, I wanted the same. It needs to be mentioned the help rendered by Thiru S.J.S. SWAMIDOSS, Director, Department of Economic and Policy, Reserve Bank of India, Chennai for providing Statistical data required for the thesis. Thiru D.G.RAMALINGAM, Computer Professional needs a special mention and admiration for presenting the thesis in a nice manner.

My thanks are due to my beloved wife Tmt K. ARULAMMAI and daughters K. KAVITHA and K. BHAMINI who were the source of encouragement for completing this dissertation work. My heartfelt thanks to my parents, particularly to my (late) father M. SARANGAPANI who cherished the dream that I would attain a good position through hard and sincere work. I am thankful to the Almighty God for having provided me the required intelligence and perseverance to complete this dissertation. I dedicate this thesis to Him.
