ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This thesis is the outcome of an intensive research work carried out among the Boros and Garos of Kamrup District, Assam, to highlight the status of women in the Boro and Garo society. The study was carried out within the period of 2008 to 2013.

The study was undertaken under the supervision of Dr. Rani Hazarika Kakati, Professor, Department of Anthropology, Gauhati University. My first and foremost gratitude will go to my guide Prof. Kakati without whose able guidance and persistent encouragement this work could not have been completed. I shall be indebted to her for her immense help and all-round cooperation in carrying out the research work.

I am very much grateful to my respected teachers Dr. Bapukan Choudhury and Dr. Birinchi Kr. Medhi for their encouraging words and constructive suggestion at the time of need. I would also like to take the opportunity to express my gratitude to all the teachers of the Department of Anthropology, G.U. for their help and valuable suggestions.

My sincere thanks goes to Dr. Nripen Goswami, Principal, J. N. College, Boko, who encouraged me and allowed to pursue the project. It is my pleasure to mention the kind cooperation of the teachers of the Department of Anthropology, J N College, Boko. My sincere thanks goes to them. I offer my special thanks to B. C. Goswami, the former Head of the Department of Anthropology, for his good will. There are many persons behind the work whose names are not mentioned here, my sincere thanks to all of them.

I shall fail my duties if I do not admit my indebtedness to the people of the study area who helped me in various ways during the time of my field investigation. The village elders and all the villagers of both Bhogdabari and Singpara are always welcoming and cooperative to my questions and quarries. I express my sincere gratitude to all of them.

And last but not the least I would like to thank my family members without whose help and support this would never have been possible.
