ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

"Gratitude is the memory of the heart," says J.B. Massieu. This is precisely how I cherish the contribution of all the people who became inevitably involved in fulfilling my dream of achieving a doctorate.

First and foremost, I express my gratitude to my supervisor, Prof. Manju Jaidka, for her sagacious guidance in all the matters regarding Ph.D and otherwise. I feel singularly fortunate for having so closely associated with her, and her constructive criticism and rare foresight helped me to improve my study. Her absolute dedication to work became a source of inspiration for me and enabled me to push the limits and meet the ever-pressing deadlines. The light shown by her will guide me in all my future endeavours, too.

I would like to thank my co-supervisor, Prof.(Dr.) Mahendra Kumar, for his infinite support in making this dream a reality. The "whys" and "hows", so often tossed by him, enabled me to approach the topic with fresh enthusiasm and approach. His remarkable insights and analytical judgements formulated the backbone of this study.

I extend my gratitude to Prof. Rana Nayar, Chairperson, Department of English and Cultural Studies, for his continuous encouragement and support.

I am ever grateful to Prof. Anil Raina for his incessant motivation. His thoughtful feedback, critical comments and suggestions propelled my research at the outset.

My mother, Mrs Rekha Nahar, is my essence. Her contribution in my life goes beyond the fulfilment of this project. It is her unflinching faith in me that inspired me to undertake this arduous task of writing a thesis in the first place. For me, patience and poise have become synonymous with this enigma of a person called “ma”. I thank her for instilling in me a passion for reading and higher education. Her pride in me fills me with strength and self-confidence.

My father, Mr S.S. Nahar, is the anchor in my life. I cannot thank him enough for casting us in the mould of education, honesty and hard work. Literary and political discussions permeate our daily conversations and act as guiding agents in all our actions. Through his composed demeanour and silent faith, he encouraged me at every step of my study. His testing questions and suggestions offered fresh perspectives to me. It is from him that I learnt the value of time which made this strenuous and challenging task a possibility within a span of three years. His confidence in me and his pride in my achievements inspire me to strive harder than ever.

I take this opportunity to thank my father-in-law, Sh. Suresh Chandra Vatsayyan, for all his words of encouragement. His immense knowledge of literature and scientific outlook supplied me with rare insights into this field. The joy writ large on his face during such discourses stimulated me to probe harder and delve deeper. I deeply regret his absence in our lives but his unseen presence will always be our guiding principle.
Words cannot express my gratitude towards my mother-in-law, Mrs Satisha Sharma. It is largely due to her immeasurable co-operation that a final shape was given to this study. Being an educationist, she understood the time and space required for such an undertaking and gave me complete freedom to pursue my goal at my own pace. The importance which she attaches to my education is touching and inspiring, alike. I thank her for her unconditional love and support.

Sargam, my sister, deserves special thanks for being actively involved in the study. During the long hours which I spent contemplating, writing, erasing and re-writing on the laptop, she would read and re-read every single paragraph diligently and encourage me with her silent support. In difficult times, her piquant one-liners would immediately lift my spirits and re-instate my self-confidence.

I extend my thanks to my two sisters-in-law, Jaya di and Suparna di, for being what they are.

My husband, Vaivasvat, is my pillar of strength. He is my friend, my critic and my guide, all rolled into one. His interminable faith in my abilities is inspirational. I thank him for goading me on and for suffering through my numerous temper tantrums. Words fall short to express my thanks to him for always standing by my side, and for saving me from my own mistakes. He has the extraordinary ability to find good in all things bad and, as a result, reduce the magnitude of the problem in hand. He is, indeed, the driving force behind my endeavour.
