ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Gratitude is never a matter of right which can be claimed; rather it is a matter of personal feelings. It becomes due. What is due must, therefore, be acknowledged. No words can repay the intellectual debts, however, I cannot escape my duty to acknowledge gratefulness to those who offered valuable guidance, suggestions, help and support for the completion of my research as any academic work is inconceivable without help and co-operation from others.

At the outset, I bow in solemn gratitude to the almighty God for instilling in me an insight to work on the topic of present research. We know the initiation of a research work demands ‘inspiration’. Although words fail to express my deep and profound gratitude to my learned supervisor Professor Dr. Gurjeet Singh, Vice-Chancellor, National Law University and Judicial Academy Assam, Guwahati (Former Vice Chancellor, Rajiv Gandhi National University of Law, Patiala), who inspired me to conduct the present research. As a matter of fact, it is the hallmark of his affection and sympathetic attitude that allured me to be involved deeply in this investigation. He, inspite of his heavy pre-occupations and tight schedule, not only took lively interest in my research, but also gave encouragements and sound consultations during the preparation and final completion of this thesis. He spent his precious hours in discussing each and every aspect of the problem and in giving minute attention to the form and stylistic qualities of writing. His scholarship and incisive knowledge of Consumer Protection Law have been a great a source of inspiration for me. Without his inspiring guidance and painstaking interest, it would not have been possible for me to complete this thesis. I lack words to express indebtedness to him.

I would also like to gratefully acknowledge the help of various authors whose works have been quoted in the bibliography. I must acknowledge the help which has been derived from their learned works / reports. I feel pleasantly duty bound to further acknowledge to Mr. Manu Bhai Shah, former chairman, Consumer Education and Research Centre, Ahmedabad who, despite of his multifarious engagements and intellectual pre-occupation, not only answered my various questions but also gave constructive and fruitful suggestions.
With equal sincerity, I express my sense of gratefulness to Ms. Preetie Shah, Senior Director, CERC Ahmedabad; Ms. Swaran Kohli, Chairman, Project Consumerism of Women Graduate Union, Mumbai and the President CERS, Ahmedabad; Mr. S.S. I would be failing in my duty, if I do not put on record the officers of various organizations and consumer groups for sending me the latest information on consumer protection issues. Prominent among them are: Mr. V.M. Kamat, Administration Manager, CGSI Mumbai; Mr. Nishikant Gurjar, Treasurer, M.G.P. Mumbai; Mr. P.K. This work carries behind it the encouragement support and good wishes of many personal friends and family members. It is difficult to mention their names individually. But I would be failing in myself if I do not express my heartfelt thanks to my father Late Mr. Yashpal Vasudeva, who always stood like a pillar at my back to support me during hard times of life. Unfortunately, I lost him during journey of this research work but his blessings from the heaven have immensely helped me in completing this thesis. Special thanks are also due to my brothers in completion of theses. It is difficult for me to find appropriate words to express in measured terms what I owe to them, but their generous help, constant encouragement and personal participation in my field study by accompanying me to all the far off places for collection of literature and creating congenial atmosphere for the completion of this thesis.

The present research could neither have seen the light of the day nor would have been complete in its present form without help of my mother Mrs. Vijay Vasudeva, whose matchless cooperation and support put me in high spirits after I lost my father. I record my deep appreciation for assistance of all other members of my family who gave me unconditional support and helped in my research work.

Last but not the least, I am grateful to all my silent supporters for their good wishes and towards whom I shall even remain indebted. “All cannot be mentioned but none is forgotten”
