ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the outset, I express my indebtedness to my guide, Dr. N.K. Kadetotad, Dept. of Anthropology, Karnataka University, Dharwad and Co-guide, Dr. A. Murigeppa, Reader in Linguistics, Institute of Kannada Studies, Karnataka University, Dharwad, who guided me at almost every step of this thesis work and offered me their unstinted help and encouragement.

Mr. A. Machado, of Dharwad has gone through the manuscript within a short period of time. I am indebted to him for his correction in my use of English language. Because of his sustained help the work has been enriched. Therefore I am very grateful to him.

This work could not have been completed without the co-operation of the Sidis who, inspite of their busy schedules, helped me in lengthy interviews. I am also thankful to all the village headmen and revenue authorities for their help in establishing contact and rapport with the Sidi people.

I record my sense of gratitude to Mr. Cyprian Lobo, social worker, and his team of workers for their guidance and help to reach the numerous villages.

I owe a deep sense of gratitude to all the staff members to the Department of Anthropology and Institute of Kannada studies who have directly or indirectly helped me in bringing out this thesis.

I am also indebted to my wife, Mrs. Jayashree Hiremath, my son Anup Hiremath, for helping me in statistical analysis.

Lastly, I am also grateful to Shri Manjunath Kumbar who typed the material in a very short time.
