ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The past four years of my doctoral study have been most eventful in my life. At the end of it, as I sit and think of all those who were besides me in achieving it, my heart first and foremost rises up to thank my creator whose presence, wisdom and love has guided every step of this eventful journey. He has made me walk unscathed through so many broad and narrow ways that I sometimes wonder whether He chose this time to give me all the lessons that I needed to learn, be it for my personal life or the professional!

My special thanks to my guide, Dr. S. S. Hugar, a man of few words but of profound wisdom and experience. I ascribe to him the quality of my work, for in him I have found a guide par excellence. I thank the Head of the Department of Commerce, Dr. S. G. Hundekar, the Dean, Dr. H. Y. Kamble and all the teaching and non-teaching staff for all their gestures of support and encouragement. A special thanks to my dear friends Dr. A. N. Thamragundi and Mrs. Veena Desai.

I thank my Principal Dr. (Sr.) Prem D’Souza who has been a strong support at all times and do the same honours to my former Principal, Sr. Carmel Rita, who seemed to trust my capabilities more than I did myself. I thank the Management of my College, the UGC and the Government of Karnataka for permitting me to proceed on a fellowship and for the financial support in the pursuit of my research work. I respectfully place on record all the support given to me by the superiors (present and former) and sisters of St. Agnes Convent, and Rev. Fr. Alex and the Parish Priests (present and former) of Kulshekar and Rev. Fr. Aroujo, Nirmal Nagar, Dharwad.

I will ever remain indebted to the D’Costa Family, especially Late Mrs. Matilda D’Costa, for the affectionate shelter provided to me at Dharwad. Colleagues in my Department, Mr. Charles Pais, Mrs. Shanthi Nazareth, Ms. Pushpalatha and Ms. Shubhalaxmi, deserve a special thanks for their unconditional support at all times. I also remember gratefully Mrs. Sudha and Mrs. Vishala, Librarians of my College for helping me in my needs, Mrs. Chandrakala for replicating the model just as I wanted, and Dr. Noelene Pinto, Bernadine, Shallet, Roshini, Treeza, Adelaide, Laveena, and all the supportive friends of my college. Special thanks to my dearest friends Bernard-Rosy and Norbert for their presence at all times in my dire needs.

I take this unique space to thank my friend, Mrs. Shubha Rekha, Lecturer, Departments of Statistics, of my College. She spared enough of her quality time from her busy schedule, by going through the descriptive statistics and corrected me wherever necessary, solved all my doubts in statistics, took time to discuss the appropriate statistical tests to be applied to the hypotheses and also worked them out for me, all this without expecting anything in return. I pray God's choicest blessings on her for her help. I also thank similarly Prof. S. Kotian, Department of Statistics, KMC, Mangalore, for his guidance whenever I approached him.

I thank the officials of Corporation Bank beginning with Mr. Dominic, formerly a Manager, at the HRD department of Corporation Bank. It was through him that I managed to get one of the best banks of D.K as a case for my study. I thank the Chief Manager Mr. Ratnakar who was kind enough to permit me to take up the study and Mr. Jagannath, who succeeded Mr. Dominic on his transfer recently, for all his support. Dr. Nautial, D.Litt., Sr. Manager at the Hindi Cell of the Bank, always encouraged me, Mr. George Ephraim and many other officials of Corporation Bank Head office, especially from the departments of HRD, Information technology, Customer Services, FRMD, Marketing - both seniors and Juniors - whose whole hearted co-operation has made me complete this study on this prestigious institution successfully and in time.

I specially acknowledge the support received from: the Managers of all the branches of Corporation Bank in D.K., for permitting me to administer the questionnaire to the staff of the bank; the banker-respondents who took time to fill up the lengthy questionnaire presented to them, after which some even had patience to spare a few kind words of encouragement to me; the customer respondents for filling up the questionnaires faithfully and especially for all those who made me feel good by their remark that such surveys should be conducted once every three months!

It is with profound pride that I acknowledge the support and guidance of some greatly respected experts in the field of research. Fr. Eugene, Former Principal, St. Aloysius College, Dr. Sharad Kumar, Director, Department of Statistics and Information Management (formerly a Research Guide at the Staff Training College of RBI), Reserve Bank of India, Bandra-Kurla Complex, Mumbai; Dr. Kalyan Swarup, Dean, Post-graduate Department, National Institute of Bank Management, Pune; Dr. Subhash Managuli, Head, Kausali Institute of Management, Dharwad; Dr. Simon George, Prof. and CRM expert, TAPMI, Manipal. Though greatly respected in their respective fields, they were approachable and obliging whenever I visited them for advice and opinion on any matter. I add on to the list two senior research scholars of the Department of Commerce, Dr. Subhashini, University College Mangalore, and Dr. Suresh Gowda, St. Aloysius College, and also Mrs. Sudha and Mrs. Vishala B.K of St. Agnes College. I thank them for sparing their precious time to help me streamline my study in the light of their own recent research experience.

Unlike most researchers, I gladly devote the next few sentences to thank a few special people in my life. It was a strange co-incidence that they came in my life and spared no effort to wrestle me back to life right in the middle of my research. It was Dr. Maben’s perfect diagnosis at all times; Dr. Harishchandra’s expertise at surgery and his diligent care and concern along with Dr. Latha Sharma; Dr. Sushanth’s expert prescriptions and all the other doctors and nursing staff with their expertise and care. I specially record the prayers of my family members and many friends, close and far and even abroad - especially Marriet, Grace, Prathibha, Juliana Teacher, Walter and Irene from my Parish; Champa, Seetha, Rosy and my sisters’ family members and colleagues from Mumbai; who have extended their hand in helping in many ways. I also thank the Couples for Christ, my colleagues and students. It is due to their devoted care, love and prayers, with the abundant grace of the Almighty, that I am still alive to complete this thesis. It wouldn’t suffice just to say a ‘thanks’ to them. I take this opportunity to make them a part of all my achievements as, without them, there wouldn’t have been a thesis.

While I ask my God to bless each and every one mentioned in the paragraphs above, I reserve my very special thanks to all my dearest, not because they are last but because they are my own. I thank my dear mother, mother-in-law, my sisters, sister-in-law and their family members for all their support. A special thanks to my sister Nora and brother-in-law Robert, for all the extra miles they have trodden for me, often out of their way, to make things easy for me. There was nothing that they denied me in the past four years. To the dearest of all, my husband Neslyn, I thank God for giving me the best life partner. I am sure we have done a good job in completing this thesis together, for without his support, encouragement, careful proof-reading and feedback, this thesis wouldn’t have been what it is.
