CONTENTS

Chapter 1: Introduction 1-52
1.0 Preview 1
1.1 ‘Communicative Competence’ and ‘Communicative Performance’ 1
1.2 Theories of Second Language Learning:
   1.2.1 Behaviourism and SLA 6
   1.2.2 Cognitive-Computational Models:
      1.2.2.1 Early Cognitive Approaches to SLA 13
      1.2.2.2 Recent Cognitive Trend in SLA (Information Processing Models) 19
   1.2.3 Socially-oriented Models:
      1.2.3.1 Early Approaches 25
      1.2.3.2 Recent Developments 29
1.3 English in India:
   1.3.1 Importance of Learning English as a Second Language 30
   1.3.2 English in Indian Education:
      1.3.2.1. Macaulay and his Minute 33
      1.3.2.2 Teaching of English up to Higher Secondary 36
      1.3.2.3 English in Higher Education 36
1.4 Work Already Done on the Topic 38
1.5 The Present Research:
   1.5.1 Research Topic 47
   1.5.2 Aims and Objectives 49
   1.5.3 Hypotheses of the Research 50
   1.5.4 Delimitation of the Study 52

Chapter 2: Theoretical Framework: Communicative Competence and Performance 53-105
2.0 Preview 53
2.1 American and European Models of Communicative Competence and Communicative Performance:
   2.1.1 Dell Hymes’ model 54
   2.1.2 M. A. K. Halliday’s ‘Meaning Potential’ 55
2.1.3 John Munby’s Theoretical Framework of Communicative Competence

2.1.4 H. G. Widdowson’s Contribution to the Theory of Communicative Competence

2.1.5 Canale and Swain model of Communicative Competence

2.1.6 Canale’s Adaptations of Canale and Swain Model

2.1.7 Van Ek’s Model of Communicative Ability

2.1.8 Bachman’s (1990) Communicative Language Ability (CLA)

2.1.9 Celce-Murcia et al. (1995) model of Communicative Competence

2.1.10 Celce-Murcia (2007) model of Communicative Competence

2.2 Critique:

2.2.1 Native Speaker Fallacy

2.2.2 Indian English as ‘Transplanted’ variety of English

2.2.3 SLA Theory and Indian English

2.2.4 Multicompetence and Indian English

2.2.5 ‘Knowledge’ and ‘Control’ and the Indian Scenario

2.2.6 World Englishes and Communicative Competence

2.3 Principles of Communicative Language Teaching and Learning:

2.3.1 Goals of CLT

2.3.2 Understanding of Language Learning Process

2.3.3 Classroom Activities

2.3.4 Teacher-Student Roles in CLT

2.3.5 CLT in Outer and Expanding Circles

2.4 Practical Implications of the Models of Communicative Competence and Communicative Performance:

2.4.1 Units of Analysis for Communicative Competence and Communicative Performance:

2.4.1.1 Speech Situation

2.4.1.2 Speech Event

2.4.1.3 Speech Act

2.4.2 Practical Aspects of Communicative Competence and Communicative Performance:

2.4.2.1 Identification of the Discourse (Speech Acts)

2.4.2.2 Production of Grammatical Sentences and Utterances
2.4.2.3 Production of Coherent and Cohesive Language 102
2.4.2.4 Production of Comprehensible Language 102
2.4.2.5 Communication of Effective, Appropriate and Sufficient Information 103
2.4.2.6 Appropriate Use of Language 104
2.4.2.7 Use of Politeness Strategies 104
2.4.2.8 The Role of the Mother Tongue 105

Chapter 3: Research Methodology 107-146

3.0 Preview 107
3.1 The Subjects 107
3.2 Data Collection:
    3.2.1 The Questionnaire:
        3.2.1.1 Part I 112
        3.2.1.2 Part II 112
        3.2.1.3 Part III 115
    3.2.2 Speech Acts:
        3.2.2.1 Request 119
        3.2.2.2 Refusal 120
        3.2.2.3 Correction 121
        3.2.2.4 Complaint 121
        3.2.2.5 Suggestion 122
        3.2.2.6 Apology 124
        3.2.2.7 Compliments 126
        3.2.2.8 Expressing Gratitude 127
    3.2.3 Validity and Reliability of the Questionnaire 128
    3.2.4 Implementation of the Questionnaire 132
3.3 General Variables for the Assessment of Communicative Performance and Their Justifications:
    3.3.1 Identification of the Speech Act with respect to the Description of the Situation Provided 132
    3.3.2 Grammaticality of the Language of the Response 133
    3.3.3 Area(s) of Language Use that Register Grammatical Mistakes 133
    3.3.4 Severity of the Mistake(s) 134
Chapter 4: Communicative Competence: Analysis and Assessment

4.0 Preview

4.1 Item-wise Discussion of the Responses of the Students:
   4.1.1 Section I: Discrete-item Test
   4.1.2 Section II: The Cloze Test
   4.1.3 Section III: Vocabulary Test
4.1.4 Section IV: Multiple-choice Conversational Implicature Test (MCI Test) 158
4.1.5 Section V: Multiple Choice Discourse Completion Test (MCDCT) 169
4.1.6 Section VI: Conversational Routines 191
4.2 General Discussion of the Sections in Part II of the Questionnaire: 195
4.2.1 Section I: Discrete-item Test 196
4.2.2 Section II: Cloze Test 199
4.2.3 Section III: Vocabulary Test 201
4.2.4 Section IV: MCI 203
4.2.5 Section V: MCDCT 204
4.2.6 Section VI: Conversational Routines 207
4.3 Findings Regarding Communicative Competence 209

Chapter 5: Communicative Performance: Analysis and Assessment 215-324

5.0 Preview 215
5.1 Analysis of the Responses to the Individual Situations: 215
  5.1.1 Situation 1 216
  5.1.2 Situation 2 221
  5.1.3 Situation 3 225
  5.1.4 Situation 4 230
  5.1.5 Situation 5 233
  5.1.6 Situation 6 237
  5.1.7 Situation 7 240
  5.1.8 Situation 8 243
  5.1.9 Situation 9 247
  5.1.10 Situation 10 251
  5.1.11 Situation 11 255
  5.1.12 Situation 12 258
  5.1.13 Situation 13 261
  5.1.14 Situation 14 264
  5.1.15 Situation 15 567
  5.1.16 Situation 16 270
Chapter 6: Conclusions

6.0 Preview

6.1: General Issues:

6.1.1 Language Learning Theories and the Acquisition of Communicative Competence

6.1.2 Norms of Appropriateness in the Use of English

6.2: Specific Issues:

6.2.1 Linguistic Competence

6.2.2 Pragmatic Competence

6.2.3 Overall Communicative Competence

6.2.4 Linguistic Performance

6.2.5 Pragmatic Performance

6.2.6 Linguistic and Pragmatic Performances
6.2.7 Overall Communicative Performance 343
6.2.8 Communicative Competence and Communicative Performance 344
6.2.9 Communicative Strategies 346
6.2.10 ‘English for Communication’ Texts 348
6.2.11 Problems the Students Face in Effective Communication 350

6.3 Proposed Model for the Improvement of Communicative Competence and Performance 351

6.4 Pedagogical Implications 357

6.5 Suggestions for Further Research 359

6.6 Concluding Observations 359

Bibliography 361-380
