Acknowledgement

To travel alone is not easy but when you get helpful and supportive companions the journey becomes easier. During my research work on the topic, I have been accompanied and supported by many people. Now it is a pleasant moment for me to recall all of them and express my gratitude.

The first person, I would like to thank is my supervisor Dr. S.K. Ghosh without whose guidance and support this work would not have been possible. During these years he has always been there to listen and give valuable advice. His overlying enthusiasm and integral view on research and goal for providing the best and not less, has made a deep impression on me.

I want to thank nursing and other staff of GMC, D.U.L, and K.N.K who extended their help, interest and valuable time during the process of data base collection for my present study.

A special thanks which was always on my mind is for my senior, and moreover who stands for me as an elder sister Dr. Bharti Gandhi. She taught me how to have confidence in me when I doubted myself and brought out the good ideas in me. Without her encouragement and inspiration I could not have finished this work.

I am very grateful to my husband Subodh Sharma for his concern, love and patience during my research work. He was always there to talk about my ideas to proofread and markup my papers and chapters, and to ask me good questions to help me. He extended his concerns by providing me a wonderful workplace at home by indulging my ever expanding bookshelf space and computer equipment needs. In this phase of time I always remained indebted to my In-Laws Mrs. and Mr. Ram Murti Sharma for their co-operation given to me to complete this work.
Last, but not the least, I thank my family, my parents, J.C. Arora and Joginder Arora, for giving me life in the first place, educating me with all aspects of life, unconditional support and encouragement to pursue my interests and creating an environment in which following this path seemed so natural, for all their blessings which were always there to complete my work. My brother Rajeev for listening to my complaints and frustrations and for believing in me, for giving a close look at the final version of my work and offering suggestions for improvement and My sister Bhawna and Bhabhi Sunita for their selfless persuasion and concern to go through with my work. The innocent prayers offered by my five years old niece Tanisha for the completion of this work cannot be forgotten by me all through my life.

Finally, I want to dedicate all my work to my beloved sister Vanchna (who is still showering her blessings on me). It is because of her inspiration and guidance I opted this subject as a career.
