Thou art mighty and supreme; of little understanding I.
With Thy perfect glance of grace, even those ungrateful dost Thou Cherish.
(SGGS; 547)
It is a matter of great privilege for me to acknowledge the encouragements, guidance and help which I received from eminent energies and sources throughout my research and study.

I express my solemn gratitude to my supervisor Dr. Gurmeet Singh Sidhu, who guided me to the topic. It is a great privilege to have worked under his methodological and scholarly guidance. Within this, I do thanks to the Head, all the faculty members, research mates and the students of my department for their encouragement to complete this dissertation.

I extend my sincerest gratitude to Prof. Jagdish Singh, who accepted me as student and friend from the first day of my university life. I would like to thanks to Dr. Gurthagat Singh, Prof. Himat Singh and Dr. Meher Singh Gill for their valuable discussions on my work. Their constructive, profound and the depth of thoughts around the study table and the cup of tea illuminated the way to understand and to learn the language of universal research.

I present my great respect to my painstaking father S. Rajinder Singh and Mother Manjeet Kaur, whose blessings and love always remind me, objective of my real life. I am indebted to the affectionate love of my elder brother, Upkar Singh, his family and my younger brother, Satwant.

I am completely ineffectual and have not any word to express my emotions, feelings and regard towards my friends, who are creditworthy to complete my dissertation. My friends are countless like stars and trees but I would like to mention some quasars, such as Bhaji Paramvir Singh, Goru, Bakhshish, Kanika, Simran, Lakha, Nimma and Adarsh. Within this, I do very much thanks to the trees, birds, fauna and living energies of this university, who enriched my faith, blessed and injected into me the poetic flashes of life.

I express my respected feelings for the dedication and sincerity of Dr. Pritpal Singh for the genuine research. I would like to thank the United Sikhs for fulfilling my needs throughout the study. There is also effective contribution of ICHR, New Delhi, to award me scholarship for this research.

At last, it is obligatory to thanks of the libraries of various universities, institutions and their cooperative and helpful staff.
