I express my immense gratitude to Dr. C. Shunmugom, Professor and Head, Department of Linguistics and Dean, Faculty of Arts, for permitting me to carry out this study and for his steady support and direction all through the period of the study. His erudition is a perennial source of encouragement for the students in the department.

I express my immense gratitude to my Research Supervisor Dr. V. Thayalan, Reader, Department of Linguistics for his incessant help and constant guidance from the very beginning of the study. He is a great source of inspiration to me. His readiness to understand his students' problems is a telling evidence of the great deal of humaneness he is endowed with. This work is, in no measurable volume, benefited by his wisdom and direction. That he loves me dearly makes me to strive all the more to be worthy of it.

My sincere thanks are due to Dr. C. Sivashanmugam, Professor, Department of Linguistics for his invaluable suggestions during the course of the study. His clarity of thoughts and precise evaluation has brought the study onto the desired track many a time. I am amazed at the speed and erudite acumen with which he looked into my drafts; it is, indeed, remarkable.
I express my gratitude to Dr. K. Ramasamy, Reader, SRLC, Mysore for the much-needed initiation at the formative stages of the study. He had defined the specific area I was to study. He evinced a keen interest in the study and was kind enough to allow me to photocopy many of his rare study materials.

My special thanks are to Dr. Jennifer Bayer, Reader cum Research Officer, CIIL, Mysore for goading me into probe the “ideological slants” in the language of print media. She, with great passion on the subject, convinced me how a study like this is relevant and necessary – considering the socio-political awareness generated by similar studies in Afro-American countries. The study is enriched significantly by her insights.

My genuine thanks are expressed to Dr. T. Muthukrishnan, Visiting Faculty, Department of Linguistics for all the care he had taken in the development of the study. I could barge into his chamber any time to discuss matters related to my study; and, if I were permitted, I would characterize him as “a rare breed addicted to academia”.

My thanks are due to Dr. C. Sivakumar, Lecturer, Department of Linguistics for all the encouragement during the course of the study.
I am greatly indebted to the authorities of CIIL Library, CIIL, Mysore and CIEFL Library, CIEFL, Hyderabad for permitting me to make use of the abundant sources accumulated at these places. They are to me what a running stream is to a thirsty trekker.

My special thanks are due to my fellow researcher Ms. M.D. Jeyanthi for her interest in the development of the study. I am indebted to her patience with which she looked into the drafts of the study. The lucidity achieved in the documentation is largely attributed to her.

My earnest thanks are due to my fellow researcher Ms. A.R. Bhavana for helping me to understand certain research problems during the final stages of the study. Her suggestions and assistance proved immensely handy to overcome that difficult phase of the study.

My thanks are due to my fellow researchers Dr. G. Janekiraman and Mr. V.M. Subramanian for the needed encouragement and assistance. Never once did they fail in rushing to help me out during the course of the study.

I express my thanks to my friend Mr. S. Saravanan for helping me in more than one ways during the final stages of the study. He uncomplainingly took down the entire study as I had dictated. He is endowed with rare human qualities.

A word of special mention is due to my friends Balaji and Yogi – “The Printers of Salem” for the excellent typographical work. They are adroitly aesthetic and are hard-core professionals.

Finally, my earnest thanks and gratitude are expressed towards my parents Mr.T.S.Muthusamy Pillai and Mrs.T.P.Ramayammal Pillai for relentlessly providing me the wherewithal in all my endeavors. To play an intimate chord, I thank my mom for all her dreams and to Papa – for helping me to realize them.
They are teachers and I am very proud in continuing the family legacy.
