RECOMMENDATIONS

- Since the data has been taken only for 12 years period from 1998-99 to 2009-10 it is suggested that further study should be conducted including more number of years in order to measure the Cyclicity, if any, in the time-series data.
- Necessary forecasting based on the mathematical model used in the study or otherwise should be carried out.
- Further comparison on the basis of net asset values of the mutual funds may also be carried out with some appropriate methodology.
- The similar explorations may also be conducted with the other developed countries or any other developing countries, in order to compare them with Indian mutual funds industry.
- A primary data research may also be conducted, in order to know the household investors’ perception.
