Throughout this long, arduous and testing journey of my Ph.D, whenever I hit a rough patch, two pairs of hands would come to usher me back on track. Needless to say - those divine pairs of hands were of my two Guides - Dr. Akhilesh Swarup, Professor, NIT, Kurukshetra and Dr. Maneesha Garg, Assistant professor, YMCA University of Science and Technology, Faridabad. When it comes to express my gratitude towards them for making this thesis a reality - I find myself in dire dearth of words. The mountains before me transformed into miniscule moles, every times I discussed those problems with Dr. Akhilesh Swarup. Such is the charisma of his precious treasure of knowledge and experience. The fear and diffidence always turned into courage and confidence whenever I had Dr. Maneesha Garg around me. She, in the true sense of the word, is a woman of substance. I truly feel indebted to Almighty for blessing them to me in the form of my guides.

A constant stream of inspiration has always flown to me from Dr. Ashok Arora, the doyen of teaching, who is my role model and a father figure. I express my most pristine respects to him for selflessly showering his guidance at every step.

May I implore Dr. S.K. Aggarwal, chairman, Electronics Engineering department, YMCA University of Science and Technology, Faridabad, to please accept my most sincere gratitude for making my work practically possible. His cooperation, guidance and permissions (of leaves for my work) have gone a long way to complete this work.

I am especially grateful to Sh. P.N. Bajpai, Librarian, YMCA University of Science and Technology, Faridabad, for helping me with loads of books and study material. The bits of knowledge I borrowed from them are the building blocks of my dissertation.

Contd…..
Friends and family are never thanked to, but I have all the rights to express my reverence for elders and love for younger ones who have unconditionally compromised their own comforts to accommodate my need to spend time on my work.

Last but not the least; I am extremely grateful to my alma-mater, Maharshi Dayanand University, Rohtak and YMCA University of Science and Technology, Faridabad, for providing me the opportunity to pursue this prestigious degree in order to improve upon my abilities and to contribute better as a teacher.

Sheilza