Acknowledgements

The present work is the result of a long endeavour since 2001. Over these years I have worked on this subject under the guidance of my university teachers, by using several archives and libraries, and corresponded with foreign Archivists and Historians and met a large number of scholars everywhere. Consequently, I received help and encouragement from all quarters, and I am indebted to many for useful suggestions and critical remarks. This page would not have room to accommodate all the names, therefore, only a few of those, to whom I wish to express my gratitude, can be mentioned here.

This work would not have been possible without the support and encouragement of my supervisor, Dr. Anindita Mukhopadhyay, Department of History in the University of Hyderabad. She is critical but also an encouraging supervisor who has sustained my academic interest in Christian missions. I am deeply indebted to her for her patient supervision through all these years. In addition I had rewarding discussions with my first research supervisor, Dr. K.S.S. Seshan, in the Department of History, University of Hyderabad. I deem it my duty to give him my sincere thanks. I also thank Dr. V. Rajagopal, Department of History, University of Hyderabad, who has contributed to the development of my ideas. I also owe my gratitude to the present members of faculty in the Department of History, University of Hyderabad.

I am particularly grateful to Heads, Department of History, Prof. Atluri Murali and present Head, Prof. R.L. Hangloo, for all the academic help and constructive suggestions rendered to me in this task. I also express my gratitude to the Dean of Social Sciences of the University of Hyderabad for every assistance he extended to me.

Finally, my thanks go to my family and without their co-operation, this thesis would not have been written.
