When I started my research work on this topic of the Feudatory Families of Medieval Karnataka, I was highly deficient about my performance because of my handicaps such as the lack of knowledge of epigraphy and lack of experience in the field of research as well. But thanks to my guide Dr. Shrinivas Ritti, Professor and Head, I could overcome both these difficulties and continued the work with ease and confidence. I express my heartfelt gratitude to him for instilling in me this confidence and guiding me at every stage. I am glad that with his help and that of others I have been able to complete this work. I am of course, conscious of my limitations in preparing a work of this type. I am particularly encouraged and benefited by the researches of such stalwarts like Dr. D.C. Sircar, Sri N. Lakshminareyan Rao, Sri R.S. Panchamukhi, Dr. P.B. Desai, Dr. G.S. Gai and others who have brought to light much new material on this subject through their numerous articles on new inscriptions discovered and published by them.

I would like here to say a word, by way of explanation, about the title of the thesis. The title was originally registered as Minor Dynasties of Medieval Karnataka - A Study. After the study of the whole subject, I thought it fit to call these families as subordinate rulers. But such families are already known in history as feudatory families and it was felt that it is better to retain this nomenclature. Hence the title is now given as Some Feudatory Families of Medieval Karnataka - A Study.

For pursuing this work I have received financial aid from Karnataka University, Dharwad, by a way of research studentship for three years, and from the Indian Council of Historical Research, New Delhi, by a way of research grant to continue my work. I am beholden to the Vice-Chancellor and other authorities of the Karnataka University, Dharwad, and the authorities of the Indian Council of Historical Research, for providing this most needed facility.

All the members of the staff and the research scholars of Department of Ancient Indian History and Epigraphy, have stood by me all through in my work. I am particularly thankful to Dr. A. Sundara, Professor, and Dr. (Miss) Leela Shantkumari, Reader for their constant help and encouragement. Sri S.C. Padigar, Research Scholar has kindly prepared the useful map for me and Shri C.R. Kadkol, typist, has lessened my burden by solving many technical problems. I am grateful to both of them.
I am thankful to Dr. K.R. Besavaraja, Reader of the History Department who was kind enough to go through some pages of my writing and make valuable suggestions.

I must remember here with gratitude the willing co-operation extended by the over helpful Librarian of the Karnataka University Library, Dharwad, Shri K.S. Deshpande and his staff for their ready and willing help in getting the books for my study. I am also thankful to the staff of the Library of the Kannada Research Institute, Karnataka University, Dharwad for their help in this respect.

Needless to say that pursuing my higher studies has been possible because of the affectionate guidance and encouragement of my parents and the other members of the family. As a mark of my sincere gratitude I dedicate this humble work to them.

Dharwad,
