Acknowledgement

This thesis here was made possible invitation of Professor Ravi Korisettag (Karnatak University, Dharwad). First, my sincere thanks go to my supervisor, Ravi Korisettag, for his guidance and advice throughout the course of my Ph.D research work. Conversation with Ravi Korisettag has proved invaluable in my academic development. His insight has greatly improved the final content of this thesis. I also wish to thank other faculty and staff members from the Department of History and Archaeology, Karnatak University, for providing such an enjoyable and diverse intellectual environment.

This thesis would not exist if it were not for the generous help and support of a number of scholars in abroad. I wish to express my sincerer gratitude to the following scholars who have provided me scholarly advice as well as archaeological training: I am indebted to Michael Petraglia and Nicole Boivin from LCHES (Leverhulme Center for Human Evolutionary Studies, University of Cambridge), who have provided scholarly advice and archaeological training in Sanganakallu-Kupgal Project and this training proved to be invaluable in my academic development. I am indebted to Nicole Boivin, who as facilitated and supported my fieldwork in Sanganakallu and also readily accepted to use the database from the Sanganakallu-Kupgal Archaeological Research Project.
I am also grateful to a number of scholars from other institutions. I am indebted to Adam Brumm (Australian National University, Canberra) and Christopher Clarkson (Australian National University, Canberra) for providing training in the methods of lithic analysis. I also wish to thank all other academicians from abroad, who have helped me in my academic level namely Dorian Q. Fuller (Oxford University), Kevin White (University of Reading), Peter Ditchfield (Oxford University), Michael Preston (Cambridge University), Kevine Cunnigham (Delaware Department of Transportation), Michael Haslam (LCHES) and Tam Smith, Sacha Jones and I would also like to thanks Indian scholars who have helped me in my academic level and trained me, Dr. P.C.Vekatasubbaiah (Kuppam University), Rajaram Hegde (Department of History and Archaeology, Kuvempu University) and R.K.Mohanty (Deemed University, Deccan Collage Pune).

I am sincerely thankful to Professor V.H.Sonawane, Professor K.K.Bhan, Professor K.Krishnan, Dr. P. Ajithprasad (Department of Archaeology And Ancient History, M.S.University of Baroda) who had introduced Ravi Korisettar to me.

This work would not have been possible without the financial support provided by University Research Scholarship (University SC/ST Welfare Fund Allocation) for the fieldwork, data analysis and writing.
I am thankful to U.K. Laxmana Gowda (Honourable Ex-Parliament member) Uruvinkhan Estate ‘A’, Sunil J. Gowda (Uruvinkhan Estate ‘B’) and Arun Pinto Avemariya Estate for all the support which they had given me.

My friends have been of great support during the course of my Ph.D thesis. I thank Girish Patil, Kalyan Malgyannavar, Pradeep Singh Rawath, Rajesh Chouda, Tejashwi, Deepak Havnur, Uday Kokatnur, Chandrakanth Tabuji, Mallikarjuna Jarkunti, Mnajunath .B, Praveen S.G, Maruthi M, Shrikanth Bhadrapur, Hanumatha, Murthi, Laxman, Gangadhara Ganpati Garag, Malthesh Bharki, Sajjan and Ramadas for all the support and good times. Thanks to my archaeological mates, Aravazhi, Abdul Munaf, Kishor Raghuban, Rajesh S.V, Dilip Kushwaha, Mudith Trivedi, Yamuna Rani, Smrithi Haricharan and Malar Kodi for the advice and support they gave. Many thanks to my colleague from the Department of History and Archaeology, Karnataka University, Jinu Koshy, S.D. Pujar, T. Arunraj, Basavaraj Chaudi, Pragnya Prasanna and Anitha H.M. particularly for their support during the course of my Ph. D research work.

I owe everything to my parents Late Bora and Biyalu, and my sister Sharada and my elder brothers Thimmappa, Ramesh and Shivappa and younger brother Ravi for all the love and support. Finally, I thank Jyothi for the support, love and affection.