BIBLIOGRAPHY

Asian, China and India: Are they More Competitive or Complementary to each other?.

Bojana Todorovic (2008), “Key issues in Multilateral Trade Liberalisation of Economies in Transition”, Ministry of Economy and Regional Development of the Republic of Serbia, April, 4.

C. P. Chandrasekhar and Jayati Ghosh (2008), "Global inflation and India", April. (www.thehindubusinessline.com)

China and India a Visual Essay, October 10, 2005.

David E. Bloom, David Canning, Linlin HU, Yuanli Liu, Ajay Mahal, and Winnie Yip (2006), “Why has China’s Economy Taken Off Faster than India”? 191

Deloitte Research China and India, The reality Beyond the Hype.

Dr. Willem Van Der Geest,(2003), “Economic Transition in China – a Model for Gradualism?” (Draft Speaking Notes only 06, September, not to be quoted). EIAS, Brussels.

Duesternbrooker Wag 120, 24105 Kiel (Germany), Kiel Working Paper, No. 1272, March.

Jayati Ghosh and C.P. Chandrasekhar: “Macro Economics Policy, Inequality and Poverty Reduction in India and China”.

Justin Yifu Lin (2004), “Lessons of China’s Transition from a Planned Economy to a Market Economy”, *Penking University Hong Kong University of Science and Technology. Distinguished lectures series 16, Warsaw, 17, December.

Omeka (2007- 2010), “Center for History & New Media”.

Path Dependence and the Development of Formal Institutions in Central and Eastern European Economies.

Richard N. Cooper and Jamos GACS (2008), “Trade Growth in Transition Economies: Export Impediments for Central and Eastern Europe”, Published by Edward Elgar Publishing limited, 8 Lansdowne Place Cheltenham Gloucestershire GL50, 2HU UK.

Veeramani (2007), “Sources of India’s Export Growth in pre-and post Reforms periods”, EPW.

Zhang Mingw (f), “Experience and Lessons in the Development of Science and Technology China and India”.

Books:

4. Invest China: Minister of Commerce People Republic of China (MOFCOM).
11. Transition Report-2011, EBRD, Poland highlights of past years, country report assessments, pp. 146.

Related links:

1. WBI- World Bank Indicator, www.wbi.org
2. IMF -International Monetary Fund, www.imf.org
4. RBI – Reserve Bank of India, www.rbi.org.in