ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

On completion of gigantic work of carrying out Research about burning problem of the 'causes of Delay in justice delivery system' and searching out remedies to curb the delay, it becomes necessary to express gratitude to the persons who Knowingly or unknowingly helped me to complete this work.

It is because of Dr B.S.Bharaswadkar, my guide; I was inspired to go to the depth of subject. His tremendous experience in the field of law and his inspiration helped me to carry out research in all dimensions of the subject. Without him this thesis would not have seen the light of the day.

From framing the title of the subject for research till its completion I was in continuous touch with my brother Judges. Their valuable views provided food for thought. I have healthy discussion about the subject of thesis with several Lecturers of Law Colleges at Jaigaon, Nandurbar and Dhule. Sharing of the views with them also helped me to broaden my vision. The lectures held at National Forensic and Scientific Laboratory; New Delhi also assisted me to widen my point of view on the subject.

This work is a re-search, that too of a burning problem, which is discussed now and then specially in the legal circles. The problem is not only of Indian judiciary but it is also problem of judicial systems either common law or consistorial. Besides the other countries United Kingdom and United States of America are also making several experiments to curb the delay in Justice delivery. In the process views are expressed by imminent personalities, numerous authorities make suggestions and the Jurist, lawyers and Judges highlight every aspect of the problem. Even the students and layman also express their concern about the problem. I have borrowed view of many of them. I am extremely thankful to all these contributors, Views of these eminent personalities made me capable of suggesting some innovative and acceptable mechanism, which will certainly help to reduce the pendency of cases, to reduce institutions of cases and increase the pace of justice delivery.

My experience as a Judge has also assisted me to concretise my thoughts about the causes of delay in justice delivery. My heavy experience and independence given to me by the judiciary to experiment allowed me to evolve practical remedies. I came in contact with lot of people for e.g. Senior Judges, junior colleagues, litigants and the members of society, who have nothing to do with the Court work but are curious about effect of justice delivery on the society as a whole. All of them contributed a lot to enrich my thoughts. As the contribution is coming from panoramic congregation of people to name few will be injustice for the rest. I am, therefore, thankful to the judiciary, litigants and society for their contribution in my work.
To proceed with research while continuing to do tedious job of justice delivery was certainly a hard task. Many occasions came when thoughts of quitting research came to my mind. I am thankful to my friends, my respectable guide, my family members, my students and my relatives who helped me to come out of this spell of pessimism and proceeded with research.

To conclude with I express my gratitude to all whose contributions still linger in my thoughts and to all whose contributions at present lie dormant in some corner of my brain but its importance is not in vain.
