ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

In my efforts to complete this study for Ph.D. degree, I received help from number of people from different places. I take this opportunity to express my gratitude to all of them who directly or indirectly helped me in this endeavour.

In the first instance, I would like to put on record that it is due to Dr Sunil Datye's constant encouragement and valuable guidance that I could sustain my interest in this study for quite a long period and could complete it. In fact, it is difficult for me to acknowledge his help in words. Still I profusely thank him for all the troubles he has taken for me.

I also thank Professor R S Morkhandikar, Head, Department of Political Science and Public Administration, Marathwada University, Aurangabad for his valuable suggestions in the formative stage of this study and helping me by sparing time to discuss the points in this regard from time to time. At the same time my colleague and friend Prof. Vidyadhar Madhav Patwardhan has also co-operated with me in this work. I sincerely thank both of them for their help.
